JOSSEY-BASS TEACHER

Jossey-Bass Teacher provides educators with practical knowledge and tools to create a positive and lifelong impact on student learning. We offer classroom-tested and research-based teaching resources for a variety of grade levels and subject areas. Whether you are an aspiring, new, or veteran teacher, we want to help you make every teaching day your best.

From ready-to-use classroom activities to the latest teaching framework, our value-packed books provide insightful, practical, and comprehensive materials on the topics that matter most to K–12 teachers. We hope to become your trusted source for the best ideas from the most experienced and respected experts in the field.

DEDICATION

To my teacher, colleague, and friend, Ira Finkel. I sat in your classroom and learned so much from your words and dedication to your profession. Then I learned even more about teaching from you as your Dowling College colleague. You were the best—the teacher that all students should have at least once in their lives, the fellow educator that we all truly admired. Thanks for your inspiration . . .

THE AUTHOR

Jack Umstatter taught English on both the middle school and senior high school levels for thirty-five years. He also taught at Dowling College and Suffolk County Community College (New York). In 2006, he retired from the Cold Spring Harbor School District where he had co-chaired the English department.

Mr. Umstatter graduated from Manhattan College with a B.A. in English and completed his M.A. degree in English at Stony Brook University. He earned his educational administration degree at Long Island University.

Jack has been selected Teacher of the Year several times in his school district, was elected to Who's Who Among America's Teachers, and has also appeared in Contemporary Authors. A contributing writer for the Biography Channel, he now conducts teacher training workshops and performs demonstration lessons in classrooms across the country.

Mr. Umstatter's publications include Hooked on Literature (1994), 201 Ready-to-Use Word Games for the English Classroom (1994), Brain Games! (1996), Hooked On English! (1997), the six-volume Writing Skills Curriculum Library (1999), Grammar Grabbers! (2000), English Brainstormers! (2002), Words, Words, Words (2003), Readers at Risk (2005), and Got Grammar? (2007), all published by Jossey-Bass/Wiley.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to thank the folks at Jossey-Bass, especially vice-president and publisher, Paul Foster, and editor, Margie McAneny, for their continued support, confidence, and guidance. Their assistance and friendship over the years has been invaluable.

I applaud and thank Diane Turso, my proofreader, for her meticulous work and careful review of this and other books that I have written.

Thanks to all my students, past and present, for making my teaching experiences both memorable and fulfilling.

As always, thanks to my wife, Chris, and my two daughters, Maureen and Kate, for their perpetual love and inspiration that mean so much.

ABOUT THIS BOOK

Contrary to what some out there are touting, grammar is not a lost art—nor should it be! Like the planet and the people who live on it, the English language is constantly evolving and changing. Some argue that this is for the better; some feel that it is not so healthy a change. Yet, the grammatical structure of the English language remains pretty much the same and has certainly not lost its importance. In fact, the constructors of local, state, national, college entrance exams, including the SAT Reasoning Test, the ACT, and even the Graduate Record Exam (used for graduate school admissions), have placed more emphasis on grammar and its components, as evidenced by the questions and tasks currently found on these highly regarded assessments.

Acknowledging the importance of grammar, usage, and mechanics on not only a student's academic profile, but also, and perhaps more significantly, on a student's ability to use language to communicate effectively and intelligently, The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day: 180 Ready-to-Use Lessons to Teach Grammar and Usage was created to assist students to learn, exercise, and appreciate the many intriguing aspects of the English language. Though each of the 180 reproducible, ready-to-use lessons and activities that cover a wide range of grammatical components and more can be done within a short window of time, the long-lasting effects of these minutes will reap benefits for all of your students. These learners will speak more cogently, listen more astutely, and write more powerfully. Grammar will no longer be a foe, a force to be feared; instead, it will be an ally, a powerful friend who furnishes comfort and inspires confidence.

HOW TO USE THIS BOOK

The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day: 180 Ready-to-Use Lessons to Teach Grammar and Usage is divided into four sections of reproducible grammar, usage, and mechanics pages.

The first section, Grammar, features 26 lessons and activities that cover the eight parts of speech in detail.

Usage, the second section, includes 114 lessons and activities. Here students will study important topics including sentence parts, phrases, clauses, sentence design and purpose, agreement, cases, and confusing and sound-alike words.

The 30 lessons and activities in the last major section, Mechanics, focus on punctuation, capitalization, and spelling, three essential elements of effective writing.

Show What You Know, the short, final section, serves as a check on what the students have studied. These 10 activities allow students to display their knowledge of all the topics covered within the book's pages.

Each of the 180 reproducible lessons and activities will take up only a few minutes of time in the already crowded curriculum that you and your students will cover during the year. If the pages inspire greater interest and discussion, go with it, for that is the desired teachable moment.

Use these pages as needed. They do not have to be done sequentially. So, if you need a lesson or an activity on commas, use the Table of Contents to select your specific need. Simply flip to the page(s), and you are ready to go.

You can use these pages for introduction, warm-up, review, reinforcement, remediation, or assessment. They are appropriate for whole class, small-group, or individualized instruction. Select what is most appropriate and beneficial for your students. An added plus is the Answer Key that will save you valuable time, a teacher's dream!

In short, the ready-to-use lessons and activities in The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day will help your students improve their grammatical skills, enjoy learning about the English language, and gain confidence in the process. Isn't that what we all want for our students?

How to Use This Book

SECTION ONE

Grammar

1 the noun

A noun, the first of the eight parts of speech, is the name of a person, place, thing, or idea.

person: Darlene, boy, mayor, worker, scientist, assistant place: Los Angeles, dock, home, park thing: automobile, tool, balloon, penguin, tree idea: freedom, independence, enmity, thoughtfulness

A singular noun is the name of only one person, place, thing, or idea. Examples of singular nouns include woman, auditorium, bicycle, and honesty.

A plural noun is the name of more than one person, place, thing, or idea. Examples of plural nouns include teammates, cities, houses, and freedoms.

Activity

Underline the three nouns in each of the following sentences.

- ① Rose carried her pet into the office.
- ② The newspaper was left on the table in the classroom.
- ③ The group spent many hours discussing the new plan.
- ④ Joshua saw the bridge and the lighthouse.
- ⑤ Her computer was repaired by the technician on Tuesday.

! Challenge

For each of these four letters, list four nouns, each having at least four letters.

b: _____ m: _____

g: _____ t: _____

2 types of nouns

A noun is the name of a person, place, thing, or idea. There are singular nouns that name ONE person (player), place (room), thing (towel), or idea (love), and there are plural nouns that are the names for MORE THAN ONE person (players), place (rooms), thing (towels), or idea (loves).

There are other types of nouns that are good to know. They include the following.

- Common nouns begin with a lowercase (or small) letter since they name any person, place, thing, or idea. They are nonspecific. Some singular common nouns include actor (person), lounge (place), stick (thing), and kindness (idea). Plural common nouns include men (persons), headquarters (places), computers (things), and liberties (ideas).
- Proper nouns begin with an uppercase (or capital) letter because they name specific persons, places, things, and ideas. Proper nouns include President Harry Truman (person), Eiffel Tower (place), American Federation of Teachers (thing), and Theory of Relativity (idea).
- Concrete nouns name a person, place, thing, or idea that can be perceived by one or more of your senses (seeing, hearing, touching, tasting, and smelling). Popcorn, thunder, rainfall, skunk, windmill, and hair are concrete nouns.
- Abstract nouns name an idea, feeling, quality, or trait. Examples of abstract nouns include pity, weakness, humility, and elation.
- Collective nouns name a group of people or things. Some collective nouns are squad, assembly, team, jury, flock, and herd.

3 the pronoun

The pronoun, the second of the eight parts of speech, is a word that takes the place of a noun.

- In the sentence, “Felipe is an intelligent student,” the noun, Felipe, can be replaced by the singular pronoun he. Thus, the new sentence reads, “He is an intelligent student.”
- In the sentence, “We offered the baseball tickets to Rita and Drew,” the nouns, Rita and Drew, can be replaced by the plural pronoun, them. The new sentence will now read, “We offered the baseball tickets to them.”

There are several types of pronouns.

Personal pronouns refer to people, places, things, and ideas. I, me, you, your, they, us, and it are all personal pronouns.

Reflexive pronouns are formed by adding “-self” or “-selves” to certain personal pronouns. They “reflect” back to the person or thing mentioned in the sentence. Myself, himself, herself, itself, yourself, yourselves, and themselves are reflexive pronouns. There is no such word as theirselves.

Demonstrative pronouns can be singular or plural. They point out a specific person, place, or thing. This, that, these, and those are demonstrative pronouns.

Interrogative pronouns, like their name suggests, are used when asking a question. Who, whom, which, and whose are interrogative pronouns.

Indefinite pronouns do not refer to a specific person, place, or thing. Some indefinite pronouns are another, both, everyone, most, no one, and several.

4 personal pronouns

A personal pronoun refers to people, places, things, and ideas.

- ➔ A first-person personal pronoun refers to the one (or ones) speaking. The singular first-person pronouns are I, me, my, and mine. The plural first-person personal pronouns are we, our, ours, and us.

We told our story.

I offered my opinion to the reporters.

Ours is the less expensive model.

The new family moved next door to us.

- ➔ A second-person personal pronoun refers to the one (or ones) spoken to. The singular and plural second-person personal pronouns are the same three words—you, your, and yours.

Can you bring your book back here today?

The present will be given to you.

This award is yours.

- ➔ The third-person personal pronoun is the one (or ones) spoken about. The singular third-person personal pronouns include he, his, him, she, her, hers, it, and its. The plural third-person personal pronouns include they, their, theirs, and them.

He and she wanted to take their children on a vacation.

They asked him and her if the house had kept its appeal.

Do you think that they will think that this car is theirs?

5 Do you know your personal pronouns?

Activity

Underline the appropriate personal pronoun in each of these fifteen sentences.

- ① (We, Us) love to read books.
- ② Most of these dresses had belonged to (her, hers).
- ③ (I, Me) will be waking up early tomorrow.
- ④ Emma has finished (her, mine) piano lesson.
- ⑤ Is this sweater (your, yours)?
- ⑥ You and (they, us) were invited to the graduation ceremony.
- ⑦ (Their, Theirs) is the cutest dog in this show.
- ⑧ Please pass the ball to (him, his).
- ⑨ Her grade is higher than (mine, him).
- ⑩ Does this instrument belong to (him, hers)?
- ⑪ (Our, Ours) car needs an inspection.
- ⑫ Were you able to hear (us, we) from that spot?
- ⑬ (We and they, Us and them) will meet at the movies.
- ⑭ Please help (they, us) lift this heavy box.
- ⑮ Listen to what (she, her) is telling (you, your) about the ship's cargo.

6 reflexive, demonstrative, and interrogative pronouns

A reflexive pronoun is formed by adding “-self” or “-selves” to a personal pronoun.

➤ Reflexive pronouns include the first-person pronouns, myself and ourselves. The second-person pronouns are yourself and yourselves. The third-person pronouns are himself, herself, itself, and themselves.

The young lady carried in all her packages by herself.

They relied upon themselves to finish the daunting task.

Will he remember to help himself to the food on the table?

➤ Demonstrative pronouns point out a specific person, place, thing, or idea. This, that, these, and those are demonstrative pronouns.

This birthday card is intriguing.

These crossword puzzles sure are stumpers!

Are those stars always visible to us?

➤ Interrogative pronouns introduce questions. What, which, who, whom, and whose are interrogative pronouns.

Whose bicycle is this?

Which of these is the correct answer, Paula?

Whom did you ask to watch your dog while you went on vacation?

Activity

Underline the reflexive (REF), demonstrative (DEM), and interrogative (INT) pronouns in these sentences. Above each of those pronouns, indicate its type by using the three-letter code.

- ➊ Who can learn this dance by herself?
- ➋ Will you complete those problems by yourself?
- ➌ Whom can I ask for help with these directions?

7 singular and plural nouns and pronouns

A singular noun or pronoun is a word that refers to one person, place, thing, or idea.

- Singular nouns include car, desk, pool, friend, computer, video, geography, and poetry.
- Singular pronouns include he, she, it, I, me, mine, my, his, and her.

A plural noun or pronoun refers to more than one person, place, thing, or idea.

- Plural nouns include women, bottles, games, crafts, cylinders, and instruments.
- Plural pronouns include they, them, we, our, ours, their, theirs, themselves, and us.

Activity

Write the letter S for singular or P for plural on the line next to each word.

- | | |
|-------------------|-------------------|
| 1. ____ fan | 11. ____ lights |
| 2. ____ their | 12. ____ families |
| 3. ____ ourselves | 13. ____ I |
| 4. ____ licenses | 14. ____ muscles |
| 5. ____ herself | 15. ____ gasoline |
| 6. ____ swimmer | 16. ____ myself |
| 7. ____ it | 17. ____ them |
| 8. ____ bats | 18. ____ its |
| 9. ____ graveyard | 19. ____ we |
| 10. ____ few | 20. ____ slide |

8 the adjective

The adjective, the third of the eight parts of speech, modifies (qualifies or limits the meaning of) a noun or pronoun. An adjective can answer any one of these questions: What kind? Which one? How many? or How much?

In addition to regular adjectives such as tall, muscular, beautiful, and intelligent, there are two specific types of adjectives—the proper adjective and the compound adjective.

- A proper adjective is formed from a proper noun. Examples of proper adjectives include French onion soup, the Belgian detective, Orwellian philosophy, and the Kenyan landscape.
- A compound adjective is composed of two or more words. Examples include part-time referee, eight-foot tree, and fifteen-year-old musician.
- Note: Do not hyphenate an adjective preceding an adverb that ends in -ly. Some of these instances are smartly dressed politician and nicely groomed model.

Activity

Write an appropriate adjective in each blank.

- ① Many of the _____ students voiced their displeasure with the new school rules.
- ② These _____ geese were searching for a _____ place to meet.
- ③ _____ and _____, the losing team did not look forward to their coach's speech.
- ④ Although the boss was _____, her _____ workers felt _____.
- ⑤ _____ people attended the play's _____ performance.

9 the noun-adjective-pronoun question

When is a specific word a noun? an adjective? a pronoun? Great questions!

- ➔ Sometimes, a noun is used as an adjective. This is true for the word garden in the sentence, “The garden display attracted many visitors” since garden describes the type of display.
- ➔ Examples of when a noun is a noun and when it acts as an adjective are found in the following sentences.

The ball sailed through the window. (noun)

The ball sailed through the window pane. (adjective)

- ➔ Sometimes, a pronoun is simply a pronoun. In other instances, it is an adjective and a pronoun at the same time and is then called a pronoun-adjective.

Several of the watches were expensive. (Several is simply a pronoun since it replaces the names of various watches.)

Several watches were expensive. (Several is a pronoun-adjective that describes the noun watches.)

Many of these computers were recently purchased. (Many is a pronoun that replaces the names of the computers.)

Many computers were recently purchased. (Many is a pronoun-adjective that describe the noun computers.)

Some of the roads were repaired. (pronoun only)

Some roads were repaired. (pronoun-adjective)

Activity

On a separate sheet of paper, write three additional examples of the noun-adjective-pronoun concept featured on this page.

10 the verb

The verb, the fourth of the eight parts of speech, is an action word. Since all good writing starts with strong verbs, this part of speech is very important.

The three basic types of verbs are the following:

- ➔ The action verb tells what action the sentence's subject (or doer) performs, is performing, has performed, or will perform.

Our lawyer speaks frequently with her clients.

This lawyer has spoken with some clients this week.

These attorneys will be speaking soon.

- ➔ The linking verb connects (or links) a subject (or doer) to a noun, pronoun, or adjective in the sentence. The words that follow a linking verb answer the question "What?"

Common linking verbs are am, is, are, was, be, being, appear, grow, seem, smell, stay, taste, turn, sound, remain, look, feel, and become.

These chickens are hungry.

Selena is the club president.

Note: To tell the difference between an action verb and a linking verb, substitute a form of the verb be. If the new sentence seems logical, the verb that you replaced is probably a linking verb.

Sylvia sounded the alarm. (action verb)

Sylvia sounded nervous. (linking verb)

- ➔ The helping verb assists the main verb in a sentence. One or more helping verbs can assist the main verb. If a sentence is a question, answer the question, and the helping verb will precede the main verb.

This mechanic will repair the auto this morning.

These mechanics will be inspecting the auto this afternoon.

Has the mechanic spoken with you yet?

11 Is it an action, linking, or helping verb?

Activity

Indicate the action verbs by writing A on the line before the sentence. Do the same for the linking verbs (L) and the helping verbs (H). There are at least three examples of each of these verbs within these fifteen sentences.

- ① ___ Last night's audience members seemed more enthusiastic than tonight's audience members.
- ② ___ Warren is going to ask his sister for some advice.
- ③ ___ Can you remember your teacher's first name?
- ④ ___ This talented surfer rode the wave all the way to the shore.
- ⑤ ___ Since Vicki had not eaten much today, her dinner tasted especially delicious.
- ⑥ ___ The doctor examined each patient twice.
- ⑦ ___ Hustle to first base, Charles!
- ⑧ ___ My niece quickly grew bored with the dull cartoon.
- ⑨ ___ Much of the required information will be reviewed during the three-week course.
- ⑩ ___ Listen to exactly what the director is telling you.
- ⑪ ___ Hear what I have to say.
- ⑫ ___ This is the correct answer.
- ⑬ ___ Greta felt tired after the grueling boot camp exercises.
- ⑭ ___ Each of these fifteen doctors was interviewed by the county health officials.
- ⑮ ___ Will you be able to help me move these books today?

12 the adverb

The adverb, the fifth part of speech, modifies (qualifies or limits) verbs, adjectives, or other adverbs. An adverb can answer any of these four questions—Where? When? How? To what extent?

➔ Adverbs modify verbs:

Henry swam brilliantly. (How did Henry swim?)

The train then came down the line. (When did the train come down the line?)

The runner fell down. (Where did the runner fall?)

➔ Adverbs modify adjectives:

The day was almost perfect. (To what extent was the day perfect?)

Some older people were quite happy with the club's proposal. (How happy were they?)

➔ Adverbs modify adverbs:

Sonny, swallow your food very slowly. (How slowly should Sonny swallow his food?)

The architect worked quite methodically. (How methodically did the architect work?)

Though many adverbs end with -ly, these thirty-three adverbs below do not.

again	almost	alone	already	also always	away	even	ever	here
just	later	never	not	now nowhere	often	perhaps	quite	rather seldom	so	sometimes	somewhat	somewhere
soon	then	there	today	too
very	yesterday	yet

13 the preposition

The preposition, the sixth part of speech, is a word that shows the relationship between a noun (or a pronoun) and another word in the sentence.

Mollie walked into her aunt's house. (Into connects walked and house.)

My mom exercises quietly in the morning. (In connects the idea of exercises and morning.)

The professor placed the book underneath the large desk. (Underneath connects the idea of placed and desk.)

Note: To remember many of the one-word prepositions listed in the following box, remember the sentence, "The plane flew _____ the clouds." Any word that can be logically placed into that blank is a preposition. Then simply memorize those few that do not work in that sentence (aboard, as, but, concerning, despite, during, except, like, of, out, since, till, until, with, and without), and you will know your prepositions!

aboard	about	above	across after	against	along	among around	as	at	before behind	below	beneath	beside besides	between	beyond	but by	concerning	despite	down during	except	for	from in	inside	into	like near	of	off	on onto	opposite	out	outside over	past	since	through throughout	till	to	toward under	underneath	until	up upon	with	within	without

14 compound prepositions and the preposition-adverb question

A compound preposition has the same function as the regular, one-word preposition. It connects a noun (or pronoun) to another word in the sentence. The sole difference with the compound preposition is that it contains more than one word!

according to	ahead of	apart from	as of aside from	because of	by means of	in addition to in back of	in front of	in place of	in spite of instead of	in view of	next to	on account of out of	prior to

According to the author, this event happened in 1334.

We sat next to him.

In addition to the shed, we will also have to paint the basement floor.

We had a great time in spite of the nasty weather.

The Preposition-Adverb Question

The same word can be an adverb in one sentence and a preposition in another sentence. How do you tell the difference? Simple! Both an adverb and a preposition answer the same questions—When? Where? How? To what extent?—but only the adverb does it in a single word. The preposition needs other words to answer the same questions.

I walked around. (adverb) (Where did I walk? around)

I walked around the block (preposition). (Where did I walk? around the block)

The terrified dog scampered past (adverb). (Where did the dog scamper? past)

The terrified dog scampered past us (preposition). (Where did the dog scamper? past us)

Kenny, look beyond (adverb). (Where should Kenny look? beyond)

Kenny, look beyond your present troubles (preposition). (Where should Kenny look? beyond his present troubles)

15 the coordinating conjunction

The conjunction, the seventh part of speech, connects words or groups of words. In the sentence, "The video producer and the singer selected an interesting location for the shoot," the conjunction and connects the two nouns producer and singer. Similarly, in the sentence, "You can swim or jog during the afternoon class," the conjunction or joins the two verbs swim and jog.

A coordinating conjunction is a single connecting word. The seven coordinating conjunctions are for, and, nor, but, or, yet, and so. An easy way to remember these seven conjunctions is the acronym FANBOYS, in which the first letter of each conjunction is used.

Activity

Underline the coordinating conjunction in each of these sentences.

- ① I will not be able to go to the field for I have not completed my science project.
- ② Paola would like to be here with us, yet she has to watch over her younger sisters today.
- ③ This seems like a terrific plan, but I am not sure that the town can afford such a high tab.
- ④ Perhaps you or your neighbors will be able to organize the block party this year.
- ⑤ Do you think that we should put the paint on now so it will have time to dry?

16 the correlative conjunction

Just as the coordinating conjunction does, the correlative conjunction joins words or groups of words.

Here are the five pairs of correlative conjunctions.

Whether ... or Either ... or Neither ... nor

Not only ... but also

Both ... and

Note: Using only the first letter of the first word in each pair of correlative conjunctions, the mnemonic WNBEN will help you to remember these correlative conjunctions.

Whether the shark swims near the town beach or remains out at sea is the mayor's concern in the movie.

Neither the Olympics nor the World Series attracted the expected number of television viewers this year.

Emma likes to play both basketball and soccer.

You may select either the vacation or the car for your prize.

Not only will Desiree donate money to her favorite charity, but she will also volunteer at the group's annual fund-raiser.

Activity

Select a pair of correlative conjunctions to complete each sentence.

- ① _____ the machine has been repaired _____ if it is still broken will affect our work schedule.
- ② _____ the ventriloquist _____ the magician will accept our invitation to perform at the graduation party.
- ③ Marcelle enjoys playing with _____ dogs _____ cats.
- ④ The competent writer uses _____ poor word choice _____ vague details in her articles.
- ⑤ _____ will Olivia attend the meeting, _____ she will _____ chair the proceedings.

17 the subordinating conjunction

The subordinating conjunction joins larger groups of words within sentences. It begins adverb clauses (groups of words that answer the questions When? Where? How? To what extent?). The subordinating conjunction can also be used to combine the ideas found in several sentences.

Here are the subordinating conjunctions, followed by sample sentences.

after	although	as	as far as	as if as long as	as soon as	as though	because	before even though	if	in order that	since	so that than	though	unless	until	when whenever	where	wherever	while

Because Grandma was upset, she asked to be left by herself.

After Andy parked his new car, his sister asked for a ride.

The driver stopped her vehicle where the passengers were standing.

Our goalie, Caroline, looked as if she could block any shot.

We will probably have to finish unless you know someone who could do it for us.

Activity

Use a subordinating conjunction to complete each sentence. Use each conjunction only once.

- ① We had not seen our old friends _____ they moved away several years ago.
- ② These chimpanzees looked _____ they were displeased with the zookeeper.
- ③ Make the turn _____ you see the tall oak trees in front of the large white house.
- ④ “_____ you behave yourselves, you will not be able to go to the movies,” Mom warned us.
- ⑤ I cannot stop from laughing _____ Garrett tells us his funny stories.

18 combining ideas with the subordinating conjunction

Activity

Use an appropriate subordinating conjunction to combine each pair of ideas or sentences. Insert punctuation where it is needed. Write your answers on a separate sheet of paper. Feel free to add or delete words, but keep the same ideas.

- ① The bell rang. The students moved to the next period.
- ② You finish your science project. You cannot play your video game.
- ③ We were watching the nightly news. We received a phone call from my aunt.
- ④ My cat, Belinda, started to hiss. The veterinarian approached my cat.
- ⑤ You will want to try an even harder puzzle. You solve a challenging puzzle.
- ⑥ I take your picture. Stand here.
- ⑦ Johann gets a ride. Johann will go to the concert.
- ⑧ François explored the surroundings. His friends asked him questions.
- ⑨ The garbage cans were left out in the street. The garbage collectors emptied the cans in the early morning.
- ⑩ Eduardo was pale. Eduardo saw a ghost. Eduardo is my brother.

19 the interjection

The interjection, the eighth part of speech, expresses strong emotions or feelings. Often found at the beginning of a sentence, an interjection is usually followed by either an exclamation mark (for strong emotions) or a comma (for mild emotions). An interjection can also be used to protest or command. Though interjections can stand alone, they are often contained within larger groups of words.

Wow! That was a close call. (strong emotion)

Oh, you are correct. (mild emotion)

Note: Good writers choose their interjections wisely for they know that too many interjections can decrease the writing's power and total effect.

Here is a list of the most common interjections.

aw	ahem	bravo	darn	dear me	eh
eek	gee	golly	goodness gracious	gosh	hello
hey	hi	hurrah	hurray	no	oh
oh no	oops	phew	psst	rats	ugh
whoa	wow	yea	yeh	yes	yippee

Activity

Write a sentence for each of these five interjections.

① gosh

② oops

③ yippee

④ hurrah

⑤ oh no

20 parts-of-speech review (part one)

Activity

Identify each underlined word's part of speech. An answer can be used more than once. Use these abbreviations on the line before each sentence: n = noun; pro = pronoun; adj = adjective; v = verb; advb = adverb; prep = preposition; c = conjunction; and int = interjection.

- ① _____ Each of the programs was taped.
- ② _____ Joanna programs her television equipment.

- O. an adjective and a past-tense verb

SECTION TWO

Usage

27 complete and simple subjects

- ➔ The complete subject (the noun or pronoun that performs the action) contains all the words that help to identify the main person, place, thing, or idea in the sentence.

The complete subject in each sentence is italicized.

Many teachers and two principals from our school attended the musical concert.

Giraffes and monkeys in the local zoo captured the children's interest yesterday.

This novel's last few chapters are replete with great sensory language.

- ➔ The simple subject is the main word within the complete subject.

The simple subject is italicized in each of these sentences.

This taco from the local store was quite tasty.

Some people never cease to amaze me.

These two swimmers graduated from the same high school.

Around the corner is the local theater.

Activity

In each sentence, underline the complete subject and circle the simple subject.

- ① Threatening skies changed our picnic plans.
- ② Many engineers from neighboring communities have visited our sanitation plant over the last few years.
- ③ Huge trucks blocked our roadway for an hour during last week's terrible snowstorm.
- ④ The Padres will win the championship in our local softball league this season.
- ⑤ The talented actress signed autographs for thirty minutes after the play.

28 complete and simple predicates

➔ A complete predicate is the main verb (action) along with all of its modifiers.

The complete predicate is italicized in these sentences.

Each of the seven contestants will be flying to Los Angeles next week.

The talented mechanic fixed our car yesterday afternoon.

My sister, a hairdresser, studied hard for her state licensing examinations.

Can you recall his name?

➔ A simple predicate (verb) is the main word or phrase that tells something about the subject (doer) of the sentence.

The simple predicate is italicized in these sentences.

Izzy roamed the neighborhood last night.

The students cheered loudly for our lacrosse team.

Youngsters really enjoy that activity.

Will he star in the school play?

Activity

Underline the complete predicate and circle the simple predicate.

- ① The citizens heard the blaring sirens.
- ② Babies were crying during the awards ceremony.
- ③ Talented musicians give their best efforts all the time.
- ④ An angry bystander yelled at the speeding motorist.
- ⑤ Who will be chosen as this year's recipient?

29 compound subject and compound predicate

- A compound subject is two or more subjects in a sentence. These subjects are joined by a conjunction and share the same verb. The compound subject is underlined in each sentence.

Happy, Sleepy, and Doc knew Snow White.

The horses and the king's men could not put Humpty Dumpty back together again.

She and I will go to the dance tomorrow night.

- A compound predicate (verb) is two or more verbs that are joined by a conjunction and share the same subject. The compound predicates are underlined in each sentence.

An experienced pilot studies and knows about air currents.

All of these cars were made and sold in our country.

Hearing the exciting announcement, the audience members loudly cheered and whistled.

Note: In the sentence, “Renata waxed her car, and then she parked it in the garage,” the two verbs waxed and parked are not compound predicates (or verbs) since they do not share the same subject. Renata and she (though the same person) are different subjects (in different parts of the same sentence).

Activity

On a separate sheet of paper, use each pair of words as compound predicates or verbs.

① walked, talked

② ran, hid

③ earned, donated

④ remembered, responded

⑤ ran, threw, caught

30 the direct object

A direct object is a noun or pronoun that receives the action of a transitive verb (a verb that has an object) or shows the result of that action. A direct object answers the question “What?” or “Whom?” after the transitive verb.

In these sentences, the transitive verb is underlined, and the direct object is italicized.

My neighbor asked us an interesting question. (What?)

The television set required repair. (What?)

Tyler edited three errors in her essay. (What?)

They oiled the skates before lacing them up. (What?)

We guided him during the mountain climb. (Whom?)

James met Mr. Hunt in the school’s main office. (Whom?)

Activity

Lucky Seven: Fill in the direct object with a word having these first and last letters and the total number of letter within the parentheses. The first one is done for you.

- ① The man greeted his brother (7).
- ② The baseball coach gave the man on base a s_____n (4).
- ③ This bee gave off a painful s_____g (5).
- ④ Pull the kite’s s_____g (6).
- ⑤ Johnson, a reckless gambler, placed a large w_____r (5) on that horse.
- ⑥ Sylvia selected a b_____t (4) from the vegetable section of the supermarket.
- ⑦ Seymour found his old woolen s_____r (7) in the closet.

31 the indirect object

An indirect object is a noun, pronoun, or word group that answers the question “to whom?” or “for whom?” after the action verb. An indirect object precedes a direct object in the sentence.

In each sentence, the indirect object is italicized, and the direct object is underlined.

Mr. Higgins gave Penny an award. (To whom was the award given?—Penny)

Laura gave us a challenging problem. (To whom did Laura give the challenging problem?—us)

Their efforts earned them a handsome reward. (Earned a handsome reward for whom?—them)

Can Harold purchase his mother a new home? (Purchase a new home for whom?—his mother)

Note: Remember the difference between an indirect object and an object of the preposition.

The comedian told her a joke. (The indirect object is her, and the direct object is joke.)

The comedian told the joke to her. (The direct object is joke, and the object of the preposition is her. There is no indirect object.)

Activity

Circle the indirect object, and underline the direct object in each sentence.

- ① Hillary's minister gave her a compliment.
- ② Lance lent me some money to attend the concert.
- ③ Dad cooked Mom a delicious dinner last night.
- ④ Have they brought you the newspaper yet?
- ⑤ Will you please tell her the secret?

32 the object of the preposition

The object of the preposition is the noun or pronoun that follows a preposition and completes the prepositional phrase. The prepositional phrase can also include modifiers.

In the sentence, “The orange juice box was in the new refrigerator,” the prepositional phrase is “in the new refrigerator.” This phrase answers the question “Where (is the orange juice box)?” The object of the preposition is refrigerator. The modifier, or describer, is new.

The compound objects of the preposition are two or more objects, such as “Mom (and) Dad” in the sentence, “The party was paid for by Mom and Dad.”

Activity

In each sentence below, underline the prepositional phrase, and circle the object of the preposition.

- ① Our plans for the trip will need to change now.
- ② We will need to change our plans for the occasion.
- ③ Unless the Grant family adds more space to their home, they will probably have to move.
- ④ Can you find your way home without me?
- ⑤ The picture sent from China is breathtaking.
- ⑥ Will Jermaine be willing to walk the dog after dinner?
- ⑦ This playground was built by community volunteers.
- ⑧ All of the puppets were bought immediately.
- ⑨ The puppets were sold by Christina and Carla.
- ⑩ Was he waiting long for you and Moe?

33 objects and 8-7-5

Activity

Twenty objects are underlined. There are eight direct objects (DO), seven indirect objects (IO), and five objects of the preposition (OP). Write the two-letter code on the line before each sentence.

- ① _____ Two Navy officials award Hugo a medal.
- ② _____ His physician told Brian the best way to lose weight.
- ③ _____ Sylvester gave his sister a gift during the ceremony.
- ④ _____ The cartoons on the large screen entertained us.
- ⑤ _____ All of the directors gave the young starlet good suggestions.
- ⑥ _____ Frank gave Jim a hard time.
- ⑦ _____ After his win, the racer celebrated with friends.
- ⑧ _____ Give Nancy your bike for this leg of the trip.

- ⑭ _____ Please bring the book back to Bobbie Brennan.
- ⑮ _____ Show me the correct method.
- ⑯ _____ Has Yvonne ever given her sister the secret that we share?
- ⑰ _____ Wilma walked Dino along the dusty path.
- ⑱ _____ They found the situation quite alarming.
- ⑲ _____ I showed Christine the city's new plans.
- ⑳ _____ Seth remembered the answer after his test had been collected.

34 subject complements— predicate nominatives and predicate adjectives

A subject complement is a word or group of words within the complete predicate that either identifies (with a predicate nominative) or describes (with a predicate adjective) the subject (doer of the action). There are two types of subject complements—the predicate adjective (the describer) and the predicate nominative (the identifier).

As an example, in the sentence, “Our Town is a play written by Thornton Wilder,” the complete predicate, is a play written by Thornton Wilder, includes play (predicate nominative), the word that identifies what Our Town is. In the sentence, “The play was interesting and inspirational,” the complete predicate, was interesting and inspirational, includes the words interesting and inspirational (two predicate adjectives) to describe what the play was.

The subject complement is underlined in these sentences.

O’Hare is a very busy airport. (predicate nominative)

Mike Smith is a terrific friend. (predicate nominative)

Indiana’s capital city is Indianapolis. (predicate nominative)

She was the first president of that association. (predicate nominative)

36 introducing phrases

A phrase is a related group of words that functions as a part of speech and does not contain both a subject and a verb.

- Verb phrases do not contain a subject. Examples of verb phrases include has been laughing, will remain, and does believe.
- Prepositional phrases, such as the adjective phrase and the adverb phrase, do not have a subject or a verb. Examples of prepositional phrases are in the beginning, at the end, and after the trial.
- Participial phrases function as adjectives. In the sentence, “Walking home after the movie, Joe felt happy,” the participial phrase is Walking home after the movie, and the participle is Walking.
- Gerund phrases function as nouns. Gerund phrases can be used as subjects, predicate nominatives, direct objects, indirect objects, and objects of the preposition. In the sentence, “Walking home from the movies was a good time for Joe and his friends,” the gerund phrase used as a subject is Walking home from the movies.
- Infinitive phrases function as nouns, adjectives, or adverbs. In the sentence, “To beat the old record was Nina’s goal,” the infinitive phrase is To beat the old record, and the infinitive is To beat.
- Appositive phrases describe or identify another noun or pronoun in the sentence. In the sentence, “Lake Harris, our favorite vacation spot, is off the beaten path,” the appositive is spot, and the appositive phrase is our favorite vacation spot.

37 the verb phrase

A verb phrase is the main verb and one or more helping verbs.

Common helping verbs include these words in the box.

am	are	be	been	being	can	could	did	do does	doing	had	has	have	having	is	may	might must	shall	should	was	were	will	would

The verb phrases are underlined in these sentences.

Many doctors have been concerned about the new flu.

Some of the new stamps were purchased by the collector.

The collector had purchased the new stamps.

We had never witnessed such a hysterical scene. (Never is an adverb modifying the main verb, witnessed, and is not part of the verb phrase.)

Will you remember my address and phone number? (You is the pronoun subject of the sentence and is not part of the verb phrase.)

Is Emma practicing her piano now? (Emma is the sentence's subject and is not part of the verb phrase.)

The runner had not been passed by any of the other contestants. (Not is an adverb and is not part of the verb phrase.)

Activity

Use each of the verb phrases in a sentence.

① had been writing

② will go

③ can be replaced

38 the prepositional phrase

A prepositional phrase begins with a preposition and usually ends with a noun or a pronoun.

The prepositional phrase is underlined in each sentence.

The elderly man went to the doctor's office today.

In the morning, the elementary school students perform their exercises.

These magicians performed many tricks for the children.

Tomas walked into the dark house.

The word that ends the prepositional phrase is the object of the preposition.

In each of these sentences, the prepositional phrases are underlined, and the objects of the preposition are italicized.

All of the trees had been pruned by the workers.

Someone in this office has borrowed the stapler from Markisha.

Will you show your necklace to your grandparents?

Activity

Underline the prepositional phrases and circle the object of the preposition in each of these ten sentences. There may be more than one prepositional phrase in the sentence.

- ① She was lonesome without him.
- ② They were jogging throughout the neighborhood.
- ③ Beyond the river is a beautiful park.
- ④ All of the sailors climbed aboard the ship.
- ⑤ In the meantime, please watch my backpack.

- ⑦ There was very little talk during the movie.
- ⑧ These men with their equipment are experts.
- ⑨ Some of the boats were moving along the river.
- ⑩ All of the women except Denise will be at the meeting.

39 the adjective phrase

An adjective phrase is a prepositional phrase that modifies a noun or a pronoun. This phrase answers the question Which one? The adjective phrase follows right after the noun or pronoun that it modifies or describes. Generally, if you cannot logically move the prepositional phrase within the sentence, it is most often an adjective phrase. Remember that an adjective phrase contains no verb.

The adjective phrases are underlined in these sentences.

Some programs at our local library were requested last year. (Which programs? the ones in our local library)

These women in this photograph are my aunts. (Which women? the ones in the photograph)

The programs on her favorite television station are often repeated. (Which programs? the ones on her favorite television station)

Activity

- ① _____ In the morning the cook prepares many different meals.
- ② _____ The car in our driveway was recently purchased.
- ③ _____ These cameras near the office building are huge.
- ④ _____ We were more than happy with the new arrangements.
- ⑤ _____ Nicole has been traveling on many business trips lately.

40 the adverb phrase

A prepositional phrase that answers any of these questions—When? Where? How? Why? Under what conditions? or To what degree?—is an adverb phrase. If you can logically move the prepositional phrase within the sentence, it is probably an adverb phrase. Remember that an adverb phrase contains no verb.

The adverb phrases in these sentences are underlined.

We walked after dinner. (When?)

The little boys and girls ran into the hallway. (Where?)

Audrey, one of the chaperones, certainly handled herself with class yesterday. (How?)

John built the wooden shed with much assistance. (Under what conditions?)

43 the appositive

An appositive is a noun or pronoun (often with modifiers) that is placed beside another noun or pronoun to explain or identify it. Essentially, an appositive is an additional word or group of words used to tell more about who (or what) that noun or pronoun is. No verb appears in an appositive phrase.

In each sentence below, the appositive phrase is underlined, and the appositive is italicized.

Michelle Rogers, the lifeguard at Smith's Beach, made three saves last month.

"The Ugly Duckling," Hans Christian Andersen's story, has entertained many children over the years.

My daughter's car, a Toyota, has certainly served her well.

- ⑭ _____ A book read by many high school students is To Kill a Mockingbird.
- ⑮ _____ The gymnast had struggled with her challenging routine.

47 the gerund and gerund phrase

- A gerund, the second type of verbal, ends in -ing and functions as a noun. A gerund's uses are many—subject, direct object, subject complement (predicate nominative), appositive, and object of the preposition. If a gerund or the entire gerund phrase is removed from the sentence, the remaining words will not form a complete, logical sentence.

The underlined word in each sentence is a gerund. Its use is within the parentheses that follow the sentence.

Learning is fun for Kate and Moe. (subject)

Marcia loves sewing. (direct object)

A fun time for Rachel is reading. (predicate nominative)

His passion, traveling, inspired him in many ways. (appositive)

Geraldine has a love for traveling. (object of the preposition)

- A gerund phrase includes the gerund, its modifiers, and the words that complete the idea begun by the gerund.

In each sentence, the gerund is italicized, and the gerund phrase is underlined.

Shopping for new dresses excites Terry Anne. (subject)

The orchestra members enjoy rehearsing for long periods of time. (direct object)

Tommy's passion is running long distances. (predicate nominative)

Joanna's love, running, kept her very fit. (appositive)

Can you pass the test by studying very hard this month? (object of the preposition)

Note: Remember that the same phrase can have several uses.

The man signaling to you is my grandfather. (participial phrase)

Signaling to you was not difficult. (gerund phrase)

The player passing the soccer ball is James. (participial phrase)

Passing the soccer ball was hard for that man. (gerund phrase)

48 Gerund or not?

- ⑫ ___ Hubie detested making loud noises.
- ⑬ ___ James enjoys playing his guitar.
- ⑭ ___ Illustrating books was fun for Maureen.
- ⑮ ___ After that, the commentator was interviewing the country's new leader.

49 the infinitive and infinitive phrase

- The third type of verbal, in addition to the participle and the gerund, is the infinitive. An infinitive is composed of the word to plus a verb. Examples of the infinitive include to remember, to cuddle, to pacify, and to yodel.

Infinitives can function as nouns, adjectives, and adverbs.

To succeed is Ted's goal. (noun—subject of the sentence)

Franklin's goal was to succeed. (noun—predicate nominative)

Melissa wanted to succeed. (noun—direct object)

Kelly has the drive to succeed. (adjective—Which drive? the drive to succeed)

Kelly will endeavor to succeed. (adverb—How will Kelly endeavor? to succeed)

- An infinitive phrase is composed of the infinitive, its modifiers (or describers), and all the other words that are needed to complete the idea begun by the infinitive.

To stay up later was the child's wish. (noun—subject)

Lorene desired to be a doctor. (noun—direct object)

My cousin's goal was to make the New York Yankees. (noun—predicate nominative)

57 introducing clauses

A clause is a group of words that has both a subject and a verb. Any simple sentence is a clause. Unlike phrases, clauses include both a subject and a verb.

The specific types of clauses are the following:

- A main or independent clause is a group of words that can stand alone. “Jeremiah was a bullfrog” is such a clause.
- A subordinate or dependent clause is a group of words that cannot stand alone. This clause needs to be accompanied by a main or independent clause to make sense. In the sentence, “Moe went to the department store after she finished her drawings,” the subordinate or dependent clause is after she finished her drawings, and the main or independent clause is Moe went to the department store.

The three types of subordinate or dependent clauses are these:

- The adverb clause is a group of words that functions as an adverb. In the sentence, “While Nick was riding his bike, he saw his friends walking along the street,” the adverb clause is While Nick was riding his bike.
- The adjective clause is a group of words that functions as an adjective. In the sentence, “Doris is the woman who designed the mural,” the adjective clause who designed the mural describes the woman.
- The noun clause is a group of words that functions as a noun. In the sentence, “This is what the doctor recommended to me,” the noun clause is what the doctor recommended to me. The clause functions as a predicate nominative.

58 the adverb clause

An adverb clause functions as an adverb. This clause answers any of these questions—How? When? Where? Why? How much? How often? It has a subject and a verb, but it cannot stand alone as a complete thought. It needs to be joined with an independent or main clause to make sense. An adverb clause starts with any of the following subordinating conjunctions:

after	although	as
as if	as long as	as soon as as though	because	before
if	in order that	once
provided that	since	so that than	though	unless until	when	whenever where	wherever	while

Each adverb clause is underlined in the following sentences:

After the captain docked the large ship, her crew members cheered.

(When?)

Because his arm was aching, Mr. Hopkins went to the doctor. (Why?)

You can go with us if you would like to do so. (How?)

Monica is more intelligent than she thinks she is. (How much?)

Activity

60 the adjective clause

An adjective clause (a group of words with at least one subject and one verb) is a subordinate or dependent clause that functions as an adjective. This type of clause answers the question, Which one? Relative pronouns, such as who, whom, which, and that, begin adjective clauses. At times, words such as where or when can also begin adjective clauses. If you delete the adjective clause from a sentence, you will still have a full (though less informative) sentence.

In the following sentences, the adjective clause is underlined. Notice the word that begins the clause.

This extremely intelligent geologist, who is also a talented juggler, has been asked to visit the State Assembly later this month.

The street that you live on is scheduled to be repaved next month.

The movie director, whom you read about last week, will be promoting her new film throughout Europe.

There are essentially two types of adjective clauses—restrictive and unrestrictive clauses.

- ➔ A restrictive (or essential) adjective clause offers essential information that is necessary to complete the sentence's thought. An example of this is, "The trophy that was presented to you is enormous." Here, the adjective clause that was presented to you restricts the information to just that trophy.
- ➔ An unrestrictive (or nonessential) clause simply offers more information about the noun it describes. In the sentence, "The trophy, which was made in Canada, was presented to you," the adjective clause which was made in Canada is nonessential to the sentence. It just offers more information about the trophy.

61 recognizing adjective clauses

Activity

Underline the adjective clause in each sentence. Then circle the relative pronoun. Finally, draw a line from the relative pronoun to the word (or words) that the clause modifies.

- ① Will this be the only instrument that you will play tonight?
- ② This next batter, who has sixteen home runs, is only twenty years old.
- ③ The motorcycle that your dad purchased should be cleaned often.
- ④ Our former college president for whom this award has been named will be in attendance this evening.
- ⑤ Have the answers that you submitted been reviewed yet?
- ⑥ Miguel, who won last year's contest, is seeded first in this year's competition.
- ⑦ This is the exact spot where the hide-and-seek game began last night.
- ⑧ Some films, which I have not watched, were made in black and white.
- ⑨ This is the hour when most people should be getting ready for bed.
- ⑩ A few graduates whom I have already contacted will help with the reunion.
- ⑪ Doctor Gavigan, who is a very competent podiatrist, practices in New England.
- ⑫ These proposals that the committee has questioned will be discussed again at next month's meeting.
- ⑬ A word that has an interesting origin is curfew.
- ⑭ Those who chose to leave the session can get the information next time.
- ⑮ The only person to whom I have told this personal information is you.

62 the noun clause

A noun clause (a group of words that has at least one subject and one verb) is a subordinate or dependent clause that functions, as its name suggests, as a noun.

It can be a subject, direct object, indirect object, object of the preposition, or a predicate nominative. This type of clause often starts with any one of these words—how, that, what, whatever, when, where, whether, which, whichever, who, whoever, whom, whomever, whose, and why.

The noun clause is underlined in each of these sentences. Its function within the sentence follows in the parentheses.

What you thought about that candidate is correct. (subject)

The paleontologist remembers when he met you at the conference.
(direct object)

Will these older folks recall how they were part of a terrific generation? (direct object)

Remind whoever is on your discussion panel that we will meet tomorrow morning in the library. (indirect object)

Give whoever needs that information the correct numbers.
(indirect object)

Mr. Bellington reminded us of where we should obtain the necessary papers for our licenses. (object of the preposition)

My children's request is that you wear your silly tie to the birthday party. (predicate nominative)

The lady's wish is that you bring her some pansies and daisies.
(predicate nominative)

63 the many uses of the noun clause

Activity

Indicate the function of the underlined noun clause in each sentence. Write the correct letter codes on the line preceding each sentence. Each function is used at least once.

S = subject	IO = indirect object	PN = predicate nominative

71 sentences, fragments, and run-on sentences

A sentence can be a word (Stop!) or a group of words that must contain a subject (doer), a verb (action), and a complete thought.

- In the sentence, “Lorina washed her face,” the subject is Lorina, the verb is washed, and the group of words makes a complete thought.

A fragment is a group of words that might lack a subject or a verb and does not make a complete thought.

- “During the trial” is a fragment since there is no subject, verb, or complete thought.
- “Vicki running next to her sister” is another fragment because, though it has a subject, (Vicki), and possibly a verb (running), the group of words does not make a complete thought. Thus, it is not a sentence.
- The group of words “After these stray dogs were placed in the pound” is also a fragment. It has a subject (dogs) and a verb (were placed), but there is no complete thought.

A run-on sentence is two (or more) sentences incorrectly written as a single sentence.

- “The sofa is comfortable, the chair is too” is an example of a run-on sentence because two complete sentences are incorrectly joined (or spliced) by a comma.
- Sometimes run-on sentences have no punctuation at all! An example of this is, “Princeton University is a fine place of higher learning it is located in New Jersey.” Here, there are really two sentences that have been mistakenly joined or spliced into one.

72 What's what? sentences, fragments, and run-on sentences

Activity

Five sentences (S), five fragments (F), and five run-on sentences (ROS) are found in these fifteen groups of words. Write the appropriate code letter(s) on the line next to the group of words.

- ① ____ Have you already visited that famous London museum?

- ⑨ Looking into the car's window
- ⑩ The entertainer sang many songs we like all of them

74 types of sentences by purpose

Sentences have different purposes. Some make statements. Some ask questions. Others give commands, and still others express strong feelings.

Here are the four types of sentences by purpose:

- ➔ A declarative sentence makes a statement or expresses an opinion. Use a period at the end of a declarative sentence.

Andy Murray has a great will to win.

The commentator laughed at his own mistake.

- ➔ An interrogative sentence asks a question and ends with a question mark.

Are you using the saw today, Mitch?

May the other people come along with us?

- ➔ An exclamatory sentence expresses strong feeling and ends with an exclamation mark.

This is just the way to do it!

That is great news!

- ➔ An imperative sentence gives a command (strong emotion) or makes a request (mild emotion). Use an exclamation after the imperative sentence that contains a strong emotion, and a period after one that contains a mild emotion.

Stop that foolish talk now!

Please take the empty plate away now, Ira.

Activity

Write an example of each type of sentence on the appropriate line.

Declarative sentence _____

Interrogative sentence _____

Exclamatory sentence _____

Imperative sentence _____

75 "purposeful" sentences

Activity

Knowing a sentence's design by purpose is helpful. Each of these sentences is either a declarative (DEC), an interrogative (INT), an exclamatory (EXC), or an imperative (IMP) one. Write the appropriate three-letter combination next to its corresponding type of sentence. Each type of sentence appears five times.

- ① _____ Have you read this newspaper article?
- ② _____ We are late for the meeting.
- ③ _____ Stop that right now!
- ④ _____ Remember to watch your step as you leave the room.
- ⑤ _____ Are the packages here yet?

- ⑲ _____ Please carry my valise into the next room, Louis.
- ⑳ _____ Will you remember to lock the doors behind you?

76 sentences by design (or construction)

Activity

Sentences are constructed by purpose (declarative, interrogative, exclamatory, and imperative sentences) as well as by design. The four types of sentences by design (or construction) are the simple, the compound, the complex, and the compound-complex sentence.

➔ A simple sentence consists of one independent (or main) clause (group of words).

My report should be longer.

Joanna and Anna brought their children home.

I cannot easily forget that ceremony.

➔ A compound sentence consists of two or more independent (or main) clauses that are closely related in meaning.

The sun broke through the clouds, and the children went outside to play. (This is a good compound sentence because the clauses are related.)

The sun broke through the clouds, and the television needs to be replaced. (This is not a good compound sentence because the clauses are totally unrelated.)

➔ A complex sentence has one main (or independent) clause and one (or more) subordinate (or dependent) clauses.

This is the same method that the doctors used last year. (The subordinate clause is underlined.)

If you can help us out, we would be very grateful. (The subordinate clause is underlined.)

➔ A compound-complex sentence has two (or more) main (or independent) clauses and one (or more) subordinate (or dependent) clauses.

[The public address announcer correctly pronounced the player's difficult name], and [the umpire signaled to the batter] who was standing by the dugout. (The subordinate clause is underlined, and the two main clauses are in brackets.)

77 simple and compound sentences

Activity

There are five simple (S) and five compound (C) sentences in these ten sentences. Write the appropriate letter on the line next to the sentence.

- ① _____ The exciting performer approached the microphone, and the crowd waited expectantly.

- ⑧ _____ Our team's catcher, Jillian, is very agile, and she is also a dedicated captain and player.
- ⑨ _____ Priscilla watched the sunset from her bay window across the serene lake in Massachusetts.
- ⑩ _____ Can you believe that story?

78 complex sentences

A complex sentence has one main (or independent) clause and one (or more) subordinate (or dependent) clauses.

In each sentence, the main clause is underlined, and the subordinate clause is in italics.

After the storm subsided, we went out to inspect the grounds.

The ticket that you received in the mail is the right one.

You will be able to ride with us unless you would rather take the train.

If the trees shed their leaves during the next two weeks, I could use some help with the raking.

Activity

Part One: Underline the main clause in each sentence.

- ① After his assistant arrives, Van will go home.
- ② Select a hat that will block the sun well.
- ③ Rob returned the library book as soon as he found it in his locker.
- ④ When my pencil broke during the exam, Sheila lent me hers.
- ⑤ Isaac gazed at the computer screen while you were reading the schedule.

Part Two: Change these simple sentences into complex sentences by adding at least one subordinate (or dependent) clause.

A. This is the video game.

B. The cars sped by on the highway.

C. Those winds continued to howl.

79 compound-complex sentences

A compound-complex sentence has two or more main (or independent) clauses and at least one subordinate (or dependent) clause.

- After the winds ceased, the children went outside to play, and their parents started to rake the leaves.

The main (or independent) clauses are “the children went outside to play” and “their parents started to rake the leaves.”

The subordinate (or dependent) clause is “After the winds ceased.”

- These maintenance workers who are cleaning up the park after last night’s concert are my friends, and they are willing to work overtime to complete the task.

The main (or independent) clauses are “These maintenance workers are my friends” and “they are willing to work overtime to complete the task.”

The subordinate (or dependent) clause is “who are cleaning up the park after last night’s concert.”

Activity

Add a clause to each sentence to make it a compound-complex sentence.

- ① The deck _____ is quite larger, and it will not require much care.
- ② Several doctors reviewed the patient’s charts, and they came to the conclusion _____.
- ③ Whenever I start to read a novel, I want to get to know the characters, and _____.
- ④ While the wedding band _____ was warming up, the wedding singer practiced her lines, and _____.

80 Know the sentence's structure?

Activity

Each type of sentence (by design or structure)—the simple (S), the compound (CPD), the complex (CPLX), and the compound-complex (CC)—is used at least once in this activity. On the line before the sentence, write the corresponding letters for each sentence.

- ① _____ Several workers placed their lunch orders, and their kind boss drove to pick up the food.
- ② _____ Seldom has it rained for this long.
- ③ _____ Even though Marnie searched hard for the misplaced earring, she was unable to find it.
- ④ _____ An idea that the director introduced to the group was well received, and then their plans were revised.
- ⑤ _____ I would like to visit my cousin soon.
- ⑥ _____ The ship's captain made a wide turn, and the boat responded beautifully.
- ⑦ _____ Edith sat still while the dentist examined her teeth.
- ⑧ _____ Is this the address?
- ⑨ _____ When the movie ended, the crowd of people exited quietly.
- ⑩ _____ The dealer shuffled the cards, and the players anxiously awaited their hands.
- ⑪ _____ A few marathon runners who had trained hard for the event sped along the course, but other less intense runners struggled.
- ⑫ _____ These computer monitors that are several years old can be stored here.
- ⑬ _____ You can stay, or you can go.
- ⑭ _____ She finished her meal in time.
- ⑮ _____ Is this the watch that you were given?

81 subject and verb agreement

A sentence's subject must agree in number with its verb. Thus, singular verbs should be used for singular subjects, and plural verbs should be used for plural subjects.

- ➔ In each of these sentences, the singular subject is underlined, and the singular verb is italicized.

Sam holds the school record for the mile run.

This woman knows that subject very well.

Kara performs with the local dance company.

- ➔ In each of these sentences, the plural subject is underlined, and the plural verb is italicized.

These two seniors hold the record for the mile run.

These women know that subject very well.

They perform with the local dance company.

Activity

Underline the correct verb in each sentence. Then indicate if the verb is singular (S) or plural (P) on the line next to the sentence.

- ① _____ We (drive, drives) to school each morning.
- ② _____ Layla (read, reads) her textbook in class.
- ③ _____ All of the workers (line, lines) up for their checks.
- ④ _____ Some contestants (win, wins) much money on that show.
- ⑤ _____ The experienced judge fondly (recall, recalls) her early days on the bench.
- ⑥ _____ The cereal box (attract, attracts) many shoppers.
- ⑦ _____ Most writers (do, does) their writing in comfortable locations.
- ⑧ _____ The replica of the dinosaur (is, are) in the city's museum.
- ⑨ _____ Today's weather conditions (is, are) favorable for the regatta.
- ⑩ _____ Seven plane tickets (was, were) given at no cost to the needy family.

82 agreement involving prepositional phrases

A verb will agree in number with the sentence's subject.

- ➔ In the sentence, “One of the girls is counting the tickets,” the subject is one and the verb is is. Both the subject and the verb are singular.
- ➔ In the sentence, “Many of the girls are counting the tickets,” the subject, many, and the verb, are, are plural.

Notice how in these example sentences the subjects and verbs agree in number.

- ➔ The design for these few buildings is intricate. (The singular subject, design, agrees in number with the singular verb, is.)
- ➔ The portraits in the White House are memorable. (The plural subject, portraits, agrees in number with the plural verb, are.)

Note: When you are working with the indefinite pronouns that can be either singular or plural (all, any, more, most, none, and some), the verb will agree in number with the object of the preposition in the prepositional phrase that is associated with the verb.

- ➔ Some of the newspaper is missing. (Because some can be either singular or plural, match the verb with the object of the preposition. As newspaper is singular, use is [not are] as the verb.)
- ➔ Some of the newspapers are missing. (Because some can be either singular or plural, match the verb with the object of the preposition. As newspapers is plural, use are [not is] as the verb.)

83 knowing your prepositional phrases and agreement

Activity

Underline the subject of each sentence, and then circle the verb that agrees in number with it.

- ① Many buildings in our city (is, are) managed well.

84 pronouns and their antecedents

Take the sentence, “The veterinarian took pride in her work.” The pronoun her refers back to veterinarian, the subject of the sentence. In this context, veterinarian is the pronoun’s antecedent, the word that the pronoun refers back to in the sentence. Usually, the antecedent comes before the pronoun in the sentence. In all cases, the pronoun and its antecedent must agree in number and gender.

In the following sentences, the antecedent is italicized, and the pronoun is underlined.

The flag has lost its colors over these two years. (singular antecedent and pronoun)

Our teachers surely know their subjects well. (plural antecedent and pronoun)

Dogs know their capabilities. (plural antecedent and pronoun)

Activity

In the following sentences, circle the antecedent, and underline the pronoun.

- ① This superficial wound should heal itself.
- ② These girls recalled their passwords.
- ③ The last time that I spoke with Luca, he said that he would be here on time.
- ④ When Jim and Joe play their guitars in school, they attract a large crowd.
- ⑤ Since we called our cousins on the telephone, they have been more friendly towards us.

85 agreement between indefinite pronouns and their antecedents

Singular indefinite pronouns agree in number with their antecedents. These pronouns are anybody, anyone, anything, each, either, everybody, everyone, everything, neither, nobody, no one, nothing, one, somebody, someone, and something.

- Everyone in the church is singing his or her best. (His and her are singular pronouns, and everyone is the singular antecedent.)

Note: Use his or her if you assume that both genders are included, as in the preceding example.

- Everything in this large closet has lost its value over the years. (Its is a singular pronoun that agrees in number with everything, the singular antecedent.)

Plural indefinite pronouns, including both, few, many, and several, will serve as plural antecedents.

- Both of the singers have their fans. (Both is the plural antecedent, and their is the plural pronoun.)
- Several of the club officials raised their hands with questions. (Several is the plural antecedent, and their is the plural pronoun.)

Some pronouns can be either singular or plural, depending upon their context within the sentence. These pronouns are all, any, more, most, none, and some.

In these instances, look to see if the object of the preposition is singular or plural. The verb and antecedent will agree with the object of the preposition.

- All of the newspaper is wet, and I cannot read it now. (Newspaper, the object of the preposition, is singular; use the singular pronoun, it.)
- Most of the newspapers have raised their advertising prices. (Newspapers, the object of the preposition, is plural; use the plural pronoun, their.)

90 compound subjects (part one)

A subject is the doer of the action in a sentence. A compound subject has more than one subject.

In each of these sentences, the compound subjects are underlined.

The cat and the mouse ran around the room.

Neither the cat nor the mouse heard him.

Both the youngsters and the adults enjoyed square dancing.

Here are two important rules when working with compound subjects. You will be introduced to several other rules on another page.

- ➔ Rule #1: Singular subjects joined by and usually agree in number with a plural verb.

This plant and a large tree were in the photo.

The older boy and his companion have the boxes of fruit.

His dad and my brother are on the same work crew.

- ➔ Rule #2: Compound subjects that have a single entity agree in number with a singular verb.

Bacon, lettuce, and tomato is Mitt's tastiest sandwich. (Bacon, lettuce, and tomato are a single entity here.)

Chutes and Ladders was Ricky's favorite game. (Chutes and Ladders is a game—a single entity.)

All the King's Men by Robert Penn Warren is a good book to read if you are interested in politics. (Though the book's title features a plural noun, men, the title is considered a single entity. Thus, the verb is should be used.)

91 compound subjects (part two)

Here are some more handy rules about compound subjects to know and use in your writing.

- Rule #3: When singular subjects are joined by or or nor, use a singular verb.

Neither the kangaroo nor the ostrich was awake.

Either the monkey or the giraffe is here.

- Rule #4: Plural subjects joined by or or nor agree in number with a plural verb.

The girls or the boys are going to the playground.

Neither the girls nor the boys are at the playground.

- Rule #5: When a singular subject and a plural subject are joined by or or nor, the verb agrees in number with the subject closer to it.

Neither the assistants nor the police captain has called you.

Either the police captain or her assistants have called you.

Either he or his three friends are going to the library this evening.

Neither they nor she is here.

- Rule #6: If the compound subjects are in an interrogative sentence, answer the question to see which subject is closer to the verb.

(Has, Have) either the boy or the girls reached the location?

Answer the question: No, neither the boy nor the girls have reached the location.

(Was, Were) either the girls or the boy with you at the dance?

Answer the question: No, neither the girls nor the boy was with me at the dance.

93 subject-verb agreement situations

Here are some important rules and situations regarding subject-verb agreement.

- Singular nouns and pronouns use the contraction doesn't while plural nouns and pronouns use the contraction don't.

This piece doesn't look like the one we need. (singular noun subject)

He doesn't need to exercise that frequently. (singular pronoun subject)

These occasions don't need to be photographed. (plural noun subject)

They don't remember your saying that. (plural pronoun subject)

Note: Avoid using contractions in formal writing. Contractions are allowable in dialogue.

- A collective noun (a name that refers to a group of people, animals, or things, though they are singular in form) can be used as a singular or plural noun.

- If the collective noun refers to a unit or as a whole, use a singular verb and pronoun.

The squad is meeting this afternoon. Its president is Kanisha. (Squad is considered a unit since all of its members will be meeting as a unit. Thus, Its [not Their] is an appropriate pronoun reference.)

- When a group is considered as individuals, the collective noun is plural.

The squad brought their notebooks. (Squad refers to individual members so the pronoun their is warranted.)

- Some nouns that look as if they are plural take singular verbs and pronouns. These nouns include civics, economics, genetics, gymnastics, mathematics, news, physics, social studies, and others.

Physics is a challenging subject for Mitch because it demands much time and intelligence. (It is a pronoun reference to physics.)

Social studies is an interesting subject.

94 more subject-verb agreement situations

An expression of an amount, including fractions, measurements, percentages, and time periods, can be singular or plural depending on its use.

Two-sixths equals one-third. (Two-sixths is considered a single unit.)

Sixteen hours is a very long time to wait. (Sixteen hours is a unit of time, one block of time according to the sentence.)

Five dollars were left on the table. (These are five separate dollars; use the plural verb, were.)

Two-thirds of the drummers are practicing. (Drummers is plural; use the plural verb, are.)

A verb that precedes the sentence's subject agrees with the subject in number. In the following sentences, the verb is in italics, and the subject is underlined.

Here is a fortune cookie for you. (singular subject and verb)

There are seven board games over there. (plural subject and verb)

The title of a book, city, country, film, magazine, organization, painting, sculpture, or song that is plural still takes a singular verb.

(The italicized subjects and the underlined verbs below are singular.)

Des Moines is Iowa's capital city.

The Rolling Stones was my uncle's favorite rock group.

When a relative pronoun, such as that, which, or who, starts an adjective clause, the clause's verb agrees in number with the noun or pronoun to which the relative pronoun refers.

The woman who is directing the chorus is Ms. Linden. (Who refers to the singular noun, woman.)

The ladies who are singing together are Kate and Moe. (Who takes a plural verb, are, because it refers back to ladies, a plural noun.)

100 regular verb tenses

Most regular verbs form their past tense by adding -ed to the present-tense form of the verb. Examples of this include walked, talked, and recalled. If a regular verb ends in “e,” as in bathe or wave, simply add “d” to form the past tense.

In addition to the present (expresses action that is occurring now) tense, as in, “We remember that story,” and the past (expresses action that has already happened) tense, as in, “We remembered that story,” there are other verb tenses that you should know. Following are definitions and some examples of these additional verb tenses:

Present Perfect: expresses action that was completed at some other time, or action that started in the past and continues now. Add has or have to the past participle form of the verb to make the present perfect.

I have climbed that small mountain every weekend since last April.

Past Perfect: expresses action that happened before another past action. Add had to the past participle form of the verb.

We had walked up that hill before they did.

Future: expresses action that will happen in the future.

I will walk with you on Tuesday.

Future Perfect: expresses action that will be completed by a given time in the future. Add shall have or will have to the past participle.

I will have walked to school by then.

Last summer, we gone to the Rocky Mountains for our family vacation. On the way there, we sung many songs and kepted a log of our journey. After Dad had drove three hundred miles on that first day, Mom and he decided to stop in a hotel for the afternoon and night. The hotel have an indoor swimming pool. Since last year's bathing suit had not teared or loosed its color, I weared it in the hotel's pool where my brother and I swimmmed for a while. Mom brung us some snacks and drinks that we ated and drunked by the pool. I also buyed some ice cream bars that I had saw in the snack shop. Later that evening, after all of us eaten a good dinner, we goed to our rooms to enjoy a good night's sleep.

111 the nominative case

Nouns and pronouns (I, you, he, she, it, we, and they, to name a few) used in the nominative case function as subjects and predicate nominatives in sentences.

Subject examples:

Patsy read the newspaper.

I can assist you with the project.

They will be doing the least favorite part of the job.

Predicate nominative examples:

The new champion is Tony.

The new leader is he.

Their choices for club leaders are you and Juanita.

Note: In all cases, an appositive is in the same case as the word it refers to in the sentence. Thus, in certain situations, an appositive is in the nominative case.

We neighbors must rely upon one another. (Because we refers to the sentence's subject, neighbors, we is in the nominative case.)

The witnesses are we people. (Because we refers to the sentence's predicate nominative, people, we is in the nominative case.)

The proposal's writers, Jess and Tess, were present. (Jess and Tess are the appositives and are in the nominative case.)

Activity

Tell whether the underlined word used in the nominative case is a subject (S), predicate nominative (PN), or appositive (A). Write the corresponding letter(s) on the line before the sentence.

- ① _____ They will furnish their new apartment soon.
- ② _____ It was he who found your necklace.
- ③ _____ She is the first born in her family.
- ④ _____ The newest employees are we.
- ⑤ _____ The performers, we pianists, have much practice ahead of us.

112 the objective case

Nouns and pronouns (me, you, her, him, it, them, and us, to name a few) used in the objective case function as direct objects, indirect objects, and objects of the preposition.

The direct object is a noun or pronoun that answers the question “who?” or “what?” after an action verb.

- ➔ You asked me an interesting question. (What did you ask me?—an interesting question. Thus, question is the direct object.)
- ➔ The dog drank the water and the lemonade. (What did the dog drink?—the water and the lemonade. Thus, water and lemonade are the compound direct objects.)

The indirect object is a noun or pronoun that answers the question “for whom?” or “to whom?” after an action verb. If a sentence includes an indirect object, it must also have a direct object.

- ➔ George brought his mom some groceries. (Mom is the indirect object, and groceries is the direct object.)
- ➔ We gave her and him a new car. (The two pronouns, her and him, answer the question “to whom?” did we give a new car. Therefore, her and him are the compound indirect objects, and car is the direct object.)

The object of the preposition is a noun or pronoun that usually ends the phrase begun by the preposition.

- ➔ Sherry walked into the cafeteria. (The prepositional phrase, into the cafeteria, includes the object of the preposition, cafeteria.)
- ➔ They sat beside her and me. (The prepositional phrase, beside her and me, includes the compound objects of the preposition, her and me.)

113 the possessive case

The possessive case of a noun or pronoun indicates ownership or possession. Pronouns such as his, her, its, my, mine, your, yours, their, theirs, our, and ours are all possessive case words.

Here are several rules for the possessive case.

- A. Most singular nouns form their possessive by adding an apostrophe and an s. (the baboon's food; the girl's sweater; Marx's teachings; Burns's poetic lines; Dickens's characters)
- B. To form the possessive of a singular noun that ends with an s sound, take one of two actions.
 - 1. If a name of two or more syllables ends in an eez sound, the possessive is formed without an additional s. (Ulysses's friends; Archimedes's theories)
 - 2. Add an apostrophe and an s if the word would not be difficult to pronounce. (dress's cost; quartz's essence)
- C. Add only an apostrophe to form the possessive of a plural noun that ends in s. (the boys' gymnasium; the Murphys' home)
- D. If a plural noun does not end in s, add an apostrophe and an s. (the men's department; the mice's hiding spots)
- E. Use the possessive form for only the last name in compound nouns for organizations, literary titles, businesses, and relatives. If owned separately, use the possessive for both names.
 - Tom's and Pete's reputations (separate reputations)
 - Procter and Gamble's sales (combined ownership)
 - mother-in-law's magazines (one woman's ownership)
 - mothers-in-law's magazines (two or more women's ownership)
- F. For acronyms (words formed from the first letters of a series of words), add an apostrophe and an s.
 - the NHL's (National Hockey League's) members
 - AARP's (American Association of Retired People's) membership

114 the possessive case and pronouns

A word used in the possessive case shows ownership. Possessive pronouns do not require apostrophes.

The singular possessive pronouns are my, mine, your, yours, his, her, hers, and its.

The plural possessive pronouns are our, ours, your, yours, their, and theirs.

The possessive pronoun whose also does not require an apostrophe.

This house is theirs.

Their car is currently in the shop.

Your notebook and my textbook are in the school's cafeteria.

Is that package theirs or ours?

The movie has lost its appeal with her children.

His bike is locked up next to mine in your space.

Note: Though a noun that precedes a gerund (word that ends in -ing and functions as a noun) requires an apostrophe, the pronoun that does the same does not require one.

Nina's selecting that prize was very interesting. (Nina's, a possessive noun/adjective, requires an apostrophe.)

Her selecting that prize was very interesting. (Her, a possessive pronoun/adjective, does not require an apostrophe.)

Activity

Fill in each blank with a singular or plural possessive pronoun.

- ① _____ diagrams were studied by the medical staff.
- ② _____ friends organized a trip.
- ③ Can you bring _____ photo album to _____ house tonight?
- ④ Will they not forget to follow _____ directions to get to _____ home?
- ⑤ These youngsters were happy about _____ choosing Friday for their party date.

115 indefinite pronouns and the possessive case

Indefinite pronouns form the possessive by adding an apostrophe and an "s" after the word.

Is this someone's backpack?

May I ask everyone's help here?

Somebody's cell phone is ringing; please answer it in the other room.

We would like to hear another's opinion.

The other's situation is much different.

If you use the word else after anybody, nobody, or somebody, place the apostrophe and the "s" after else, not after anybody, nobody, or somebody.

This is somebody else's radio, not mine.

Your business is nobody else's concern.

Activity

Some of the personal pronouns in these sentences require the apostrophe followed by the "s." Others do not. Underline the correct word in each sentence.

- ① Will the option be offered to (everybody, everybody's)?
- ② (Somebody, Somebody's) car is making weird noises.
- ③ The pocketbook belongs to (nobody, nobody's) in this room?
- ④ Remember that this situation is (nobody's else's, nobody else's) matter.
- ⑤ We would certainly like to hear (everyone, everyone's, everyones') ideas.
- ⑥ (Somebody else, Somebody else's) entered the room after we left.
- ⑦ These cards belong to (somebody else, somebody else's).
- ⑧ (Anyone else, Anyone's elses, Anyone else's) proposals will certainly be considered.
- ⑨ (Nobody, Nobody's, Nobodys') permission slip is missing.

128 double negatives

In mathematics, a negative number times a negative number yields a positive number.

Similarly, in grammar, when two negative words are used (where only one is needed), the negatives cancel each other out, making the idea positive and not negative as intended. In the sentence, "I cannot get no respect from them," the two negative words, cannot and no, cancel each other out. Thus, the sentence is really saying, "I can get respect from them," a far different thought from what seems to be the sentence's original intention. Had the sentence read, "I cannot get respect from them," or "I can get no respect from them," the meaning is quite different from that when both negative words are included in the sentence.

Here is another example of this double negative situation. Notice the different meanings when the negative words are included or deleted.

Two negative words in the sentence: We didn't have no disappointments.

One negative word in the sentence: We didn't have disappointments.

One negative word in the sentence: We had no disappointments.

Activity

Correct these double negative problems. Write the improved version on the line provided.

- ① Linda can't have no friends over tonight.

- ② The nurse doesn't never give bad health advice.

- ③ I hadn't noticed nobody in the room.

- ④ This pen doesn't have no ink left in it.

- ⑤ After exchanging their presents, my friends didn't do nothing more to celebrate the occasion.

129 misplaced and dangling modifiers

Words, phrases, and clauses that describe or modify nouns and pronouns need to be properly placed within the sentence. This placement should clearly indicate which word is being described.

A misplaced modifier is a word or group of words intended to describe a noun or pronoun, but is placed incorrectly within the sentence.

Speaking to the state officials, the microphone held the reporter.

(In this sentence, the underlined modifier, Speaking to the state officials, a participial phrase, is misplaced. The reporter, not the microphone, was speaking to the state officials. Thus, the sentence could read, “The reporter speaking to the state officials held the microphone.”)

Other misplaced modifier examples include these. See if you can correct each one.

In the microwave, the man cooked the popcorn.

Unhappy, the match was forfeited by the tennis player.

A dangling modifier is a word or group of words intended to describe a noun or pronoun, but, according to the sentence’s wording, has nothing to describe.

To get to the airport, the tram needs to be taken.

(In this sentence, the underlined modifier, To get to the airport, describes nothing. The corrected version should read, “To get to the airport, you need to take the tram.” Now the modifier has someone to describe—you!)

Other dangling modifier examples include these. See if you can correct each one.

To solve this challenging puzzling, patience is needed.

Walking along the Thames River, the flowers looked beautiful.

130 revising sentences that have misplaced and dangling modifiers

Activity

Revise each sentence so that the misplaced and dangling modifiers work correctly. Add or delete words as needed. Write your revised sentences on a separate sheet of paper.

- ① To move this heavy package, strength is needed.
- ② Walking quickly, the road was crossed.
- ③ Emma read the cartoon laughing loudly.
- ④ While washing the dishes, my cell phone rang.
- ⑤ Glued to the present, Bob saw the bow.
- ⑥ Looking under the bed, my birthday gift was spotted.
- ⑦ Extending over three hundred miles, the car moved along the highway.
- ⑧ Shining in the distance, I saw a star.
- ⑨ Wrapped in silver foil, I ate my hamburger.
- ⑩ Hal noticed a kangaroo driving his motorcycle.

131 transitive and intransitive verbs

A transitive verb is an action verb that has a direct object. Remember that a direct object (a noun or a pronoun) answers the question Whom? or What? after the action verb. Thus, in the sentence, “The clown threw the toy into the air,” the verb, threw, is transitive because (A) it is an action verb, and (B) there is a direct object, toy.

Here are some other examples of transitive verbs. The verb is underlined, and the direct object is italicized.

Danielle wanted pizza for lunch.

The old shed really needs repairs.

We believed him.

An intransitive verb is an action verb, but it does not have a direct object following it. In the sentence, “Veronica remained here after the incident,” the intransitive verb, remained, does not have a direct object after it. No noun or pronoun receives the action of the verb.

Some other examples of intransitive verbs are these.

They laughed quite loudly.

The boys sprinted from the alley.

These scientists know about physics.

Activity

On the line before each, write T if the underlined verb is transitive or I if it is intransitive.

- ① ___ We walked slowly around the lake.
- ② ___ We walked the dog in the park.
- ③ ___ Reggie wrote your card.
- ④ ___ Reggie wrote.
- ⑤ ___ Reggie wrote carefully.

132 Do you know your transitive and intransitive verbs?

Activity

Ten of these sentences include transitive verbs, and ten include intransitive verbs. Write the letter T (for transitive) or I (for intransitive) on the line next to the sentence.

- ⑮ ___ Dan rested often during the challenging climb.
- ⑯ ___ The scouts marched in size order at the jamboree.
- ⑰ ___ Did you give Candace the candy?
- ⑱ ___ My dad wished for clearer skies.
- ⑲ ___ These candles will glow for a long time.
- ⑳ ___ We interviewed Gussy after the memorable performance.

133 active and passive voices

Voice is a verb form that indicates if the sentence's subject performs or receives an action.

There are two types of voice—active voice and passive voice.

- If the sentence's subject performs the action, the sentence is written in the active voice. "The pilot landed the plane" is written in the active voice since the subject (pilot) performed the action (landed the plane).
- If the sentence's subject receives the action, the sentence is written in the passive voice. "The plane was landed by the pilot" is written in the passive voice since the subject (plane) received the pilot's action (landed the plane).

Note: Good writers use the active voice whenever possible. However, if you want to emphasize a specific point, you can use the passive voice. That is why the sentence, "An exciting program was aired by our local television station," is acceptable, even though it is written in the passive voice. The writer wants to emphasize the program, not the television station.

Activity

Indicate, with an A for active voice, or a P for passive voice, the voice of the verbs in these sentences.

- ① ___ The construction worker heard the noise.
- ② ___ The noise was heard by the construction worker.
- ③ ___ Our contest was won by Timbo.
- ④ ___ Timbo won our contest.
- ⑤ ___ A new SUV was purchased by that family down the block.

139 regular comparison of adjectives and adverbs

To show how they differ in degree or extent, most adjectives and adverbs have three degrees (or forms)—the positive, the comparative, and the superlative.

One-syllable words form these degrees in a regular way.

- The positive degree (or form) is used when an adjective or adverb modifier is not being compared. The young sister walked with her brother. (Young simply states the sister's age.)
- The comparative degree (or form) is used when two people, places, things, or ideas are compared. Add -er to these words to form the comparative. The younger sister walked with her father. (The sister's age is being compared to the age of another sister.)
- The superlative degree (or form) is used when more than two people, places, things, or ideas are compared. Add -est to these words to form the superlative. The youngest sister walked with her mother. (The sister's age is compared to the ages of at least two other sisters.)

Positive Degree	Comparative Degree	Superlative Degree
tall	taller	tallest fast	faster	fastest large	larger	largest small	smaller	smallest
light	lighter	lightest

Activity

Fill in each blank with the correct form of the word in parentheses.

- ① (smart) Johnny is the _____ of the twenty students.
- ② (nice) Mary is the _____ of the four directors.
- ③ (bright) This new wallpaper is _____.
- ④ (smooth) This board is _____ than the other one.
- ⑤ (long) "This is the _____ song that I have ever heard," stated Julio.

140 irregular comparison of adjectives and adverbs

Adjectives and adverbs of two or more syllables form their comparative and superlative degrees (or forms) in an irregular way. The rules below will help you understand and utilize these forms.

- ➔ Use -er, more, or less to form the comparative degree of many two-syllable modifiers or describers.
- ➔ Adverbs that end in -ly always use more or less to form the comparative degree and most and least to form the superlative degree.
- ➔ When forming the comparative and superlative degrees of modifiers (adjectives and adverbs) that have two syllables, “Let your ear be your gear.” In other words, if adding -er or -est makes the word hard or clumsy to pronounce, use more (or less) and most (or least) instead.
- ➔ Modifiers of three or more syllables, such as intelligent, cumbersome, and beautiful, always form their comparative degrees with more (or less) and their superlative degrees with most (or least). Examples include less magnificent, more interesting, and most spectacular.

Positive Degree	Comparative Degree	Superlative Degree
lovely	more lovely	most lovely funny	funnier	funniest crowded	less crowded	least crowded plentiful	more plentiful	most plentiful

Activity

Fill in each blank with the correct form of the word in parentheses.

- ① (frightened) My dog is the _____ of all those dogs in the kennel.
- ② (rigorous) Eddie feels that the rope climb is a _____ exercise than the push-up.
- ③ (happy) Are you _____ today than you were yesterday?

SECTION THREE

Mechanics

141 periods, question marks, and exclamation marks

- ① Use a period at the end of a declarative sentence, a sentence that is a request, and one that includes a mild command.

Our blue couch will soon be replaced. (declarative sentence)

Please help me. (request)

Let's be quiet. (mild command)

- ② Use a period after abbreviations.

Dr. (Doctor) Mr. (Mister) ft. (foot) in. (inch)

- ③ Use a question mark at the end of an interrogative sentence.

Have you finished your dinner, Sven?

Note: The speaker's exact words should be placed within the quotation marks. If those words form a question, place the question mark inside the quotation marks.

Jason asked, "Is this my slice of pizza?"

Note: If the speaker's exact words are a statement but are within a sentence that asks a question, place the question mark outside the quotation marks.

Did Mollie say, "Tomorrow is the deadline"?

- ④ Use an exclamation mark at the end of an exclamatory sentence.

This is too good to be true!

Note: If a speaker's exact words require an exclamation mark, place that mark within the quotation marks.

"What a great performance!" Emma remarked to James.

Note: If a speaker's exact words are a statement, and the entire sentence is an exclamation, place the exclamation mark outside the quotation marks.

It is hard to believe that Mark ever said, "I think that you're right"!

142 working with periods, question marks, and exclamation marks

Activity

Place the appropriate periods, questions marks, and exclamation marks as needed. All other punctuation marks have already been inserted.

- ① Can you remember your previous four phone numbers, Kyle
- ② "I wish that this test was already over," John Smithers said
- ③ Sheryl asked, "Have any of those chickens crossed the road yet?"
- ④ Great You can see that these are the winning lottery numbers
- ⑤ Should these plants be moved into the shed for the season
- ⑥ Jackson exclaimed, "This party is absolutely terrific"
- ⑦ Did Anne say, "My coat is in the auditorium"
- ⑧ What is that extremely annoying sound
- ⑨ Please take that book to the bookmobile, Chauncey
- ⑩ Let's see what surprises the workers have in store for us
- ⑪ "Was John Lewis with you during the experiment" the professor asked her assistant
- ⑫ Tell all of them to get down here immediately—or else
- ⑬ Please call the housekeeper when you get a chance
- ⑭ The office manager asked his maintenance official, "When will you be able to have your workers wash these windows"
- ⑮ "Did William Shakespeare, the renowned playwright, really write all of those plays, or did somebody else write some, or most, or all of them" the English teacher asked her students

143 commas (part one)

A comma probably has more rules and uses than any other punctuation mark. Below is an important comma rule.

- ① Use commas to separate items (words, phrases, and clauses) in a series.

James enjoys playing tennis, soccer, and basketball. (words in a series)

The troop traveled into the mountains, across the plains, and along the river. (phrases in a series)

The car dealer made sure that the purchaser's car was clean, that the license plates were ready, and that the ownership papers had been signed. (clauses in a series)

Note: If all the items in a series are joined by and, or, or nor, commas are not required.

The chef's exquisite dishes include filet mignon and roast beef and lamb.

Note: If the conjunction and joins words that constitute a unit, team, or such, do not separate that name. Yet, you will still need the commas to separate items in a series.

Peanut butter and jelly, ham and eggs, and spaghetti and meatballs are the children's favorite foods.

Note: Some writers choose not to include the final comma in a series if by leaving the comma out, the meaning is still clear.

Our social studies class members studied the Korean War, the Civil War, World War I and World War II. (It is clear that the social studies students studied four wars.)

144 commas (part two)

Here are some useful rules when you are working with commas.

- ② Use a comma after Yes and No when these words start a sentence.

Yes, we have the show's starting time.

No, there are no bananas in that store.

- ③ Use a comma both after consecutive introductory prepositional phrases and after a long introductory prepositional phrase.

In the middle of New York City, the traffic is very heavy during rush hour.

In the World Series' final game that was played in 1960, the Pirates hitter whacked a home run over the left field wall.

Note: A comma can be placed after a short introductory prepositional phrase if the sentence's meaning and flow are improved by the comma. Read the sentence aloud to see if a comma is justified.

In the first instance, the dog was in the back of the van.

Without Greg's assistance, Ricardo would have spent many hours on that project.

- ④ Use a comma after an introductory participle or participial phrase.

Intrigued, the young child looked into the fishbowl.

Motivated by their drama coach's remarks, the cast members worked even harder than before.

- ⑤ Use a comma after an introductory adverb clause.

Before we started our vacation, we had the mechanic check out our car.

Note: In most instances (unless the sentence's meaning is unclear), an adverb clause that follows an independent clause is not preceded by a comma.

I cannot recall a single instance when Jimmy was inconsiderate.

145 commas (part three)

Here are some additional helpful comma rules.

- ⑥ Use a comma to separate two or more adjectives that precede a noun. To check if a comma is needed, separate the two adjectives with the word and. If it sounds logical, a comma is required.

She is an intelligent, fair leader.

The draftee is a strong, athletic player.

Note: In the sentence, “We were served fried green tomatoes as part of our meal,” fried is an adverb, not another adjective. Thus, a comma is not necessary.)

- ⑦ Use a comma to separate independent clauses joined by the conjunctions for, and, nor, but, or, and yet.

The singer wanted to perform at Carnegie Hall, but her schedule prevented that.

You can drive, or you can walk.

Note: When you use the conjunctions for, so, and yet to join independent clauses, always use a comma before the conjunction. For the conjunctions and, nor, but, and or, a comma is not required as long as the independent clauses are relatively short, AND the sentence is understandable and clear without the comma.

Our principal understood and she responded immediately.
(no comma needed)

- ⑧ Use a comma to set off a word or words in direct address.

Ellie, would you like us to pull you on the float again?

This situation, Eve, is drastic.

Will you lend a hand here, Nicky?

- ⑨ Use a comma to set off parenthetical (provides additional information and is loosely connected to the sentence’s content) expressions, such as, “I believe,” “For example,” “On the other hand,” “In the first place,” “As a matter of fact,” “To tell the truth,” “Of course,” and “However.”

This, I believe, is the best method.

146 commas (part four)

Here is a very important comma rule. Study it, and use it well in your writing.

- ⑩ Use a comma to separate nonessential or nonrestrictive clauses, participial phrases, and appositives. A nonessential or nonrestrictive element adds information that is not necessary to the sentence's basic meaning.

- Nonessential or nonrestrictive clauses

The debate, which was attended by two hundred people, was exciting. (The fact that two hundred people attended the debate is not essential to the sentence's basic meaning.)

ESSENTIAL CLAUSES: (Each underlined clause restricts the italicized word that it modifies.)

The dress that Mom wore to the dinner last night was a gift from Dad.

A man who has confidence will go far.

- Nonessential or nonrestrictive participial phrases

My two buddies, posing for their high school reunion photo, have worked for the government for the past thirty years. (The fact that these two buddies are posing for their high school reunion photo is not essential to the sentence's meaning.)

ESSENTIAL PARTICIPIAL PHRASES: (Each underlined phrase restricts the italicized word that it modifies.)

These cards left on the table belong to Gino.

The woman hailing the cab is my sister.

- Nonessential or nonrestrictive appositives

Stuart, my best friend, loves to laugh.

ESSENTIAL APPOSITIVE PHRASES: (Each underlined appositive phrase restricts the italicized word that it modifies.)

Has your music teacher, Mrs. Brennan, given you the assignment?

The address, 1313 Mockingbird Lane, should ring a bell with television viewers of that era.

147 commas (part five)

Here are some additional useful rules when working with the comma.

- ⑪ Use a comma after the salutation of a friendly letter.

Dear Marty,
Dearest Mom,

- ⑫ Use a comma after the closing in a friendly or business letter.

Sincerely,
Be well,

- ⑬ Use a comma to separate items in dates and addresses.

She was born on January 4, 1993, in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.
The family's current address is 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue,
Washington, DC.

Note: A comma is not needed

- between the month and the day—April 18, 2010
- between the month and the year (when no day is offered)—
January 2020
- between the state (or state's abbreviation) and the ZIP Code—
Canton, MA 02021
- between the house or apartment number and the street—
204 Joyner Court or Apartment 6A Twelfth Street

- ⑭ Use a comma to separate the speaker from the speaker's direct quotation.

Trey remarked, "This blanket was already washed."
"My car needs new tires," Gabriella said.

Note: Place the period and comma within the closing quotation marks.

- ⑮ Use a comma after a mild interjection.

Oh, I didn't realize that you were here, Nana.

Note: Use an exclamation mark after a strong interjection.

Rats! I left my wallet at the beach.

- H. Shawneeta, is that you in the picture?
- I. I met you on August 30, 2007.
- J. These veterans, who are going to the banquet later, all served in the Korean War.

151 the apostrophe

Here are useful rules for the apostrophe. Learn them well, and use them in your writing.

- ① Use an apostrophe to form the possessive of singular and plural nouns.
Add an apostrophe and an s to form the possessive of a singular noun.

Joe + 's = Joe's car flag + 's = flag's colors day + 's = day's effort glass + 's = glass's cost

Note: If a plural noun ends in s, just add an apostrophe.

cars + ' = cars' interiors televisions + ' = televisions' locations

Note: If a plural noun does not end in s, add 's to the word.

mice + 's = mice's home women + 's = women's department

Note: If a name of two or more syllables ends in an eez sound, the possessive is formed without an additional s.

the tales of Ulysses = Ulysses' tales the speeches of Orestes = Orestes' speeches

- ② To make the possessive of a compound word or the name of a co-owned business or organization, add 's to the last word of the name.

brother-in-law's shoes
Jackson and Meyer's law firm

Activity

Make each phrase possessive. Write your answer on the line provided.

- A. _____ the pictures owned by Mary
B. _____ the coat owned by the sister-in-law of John
C. _____ the speech delivered by Les
D. _____ the space owned by Fred and Garrett
E. _____ the address of Demetrius

152 more apostrophe situations

Here are more situations involving the use of the apostrophe. Review them, and incorporate them into your writing.

- ① Use an apostrophe in contractions (words that combine two words into one).

had not = hadn't	were not = weren't	you would = you'd would not = wouldn't	I will = I'll	was not = wasn't

- ② Form the plural of a lowercase letter by placing an 's after the letter.

There are three a's in that word.

Mind your p's and q's.

You do not have to add an apostrophe to form the plural of capitalized letters, numbers, or symbols.

We counted three Ts in that paragraph. (capitalized letters)

How many 8s (or eights) are in that column? (numbers)

Earl loves to use $s (or dollar signs) in his writing. (symbols)

- ③ Use an apostrophe to show where the letter(s) is left out in a word or number.

The Class of '18 = The Class of 2018

Let's = Let us

Gregory's = Gregory is or Gregory has

- ④ Use an apostrophe to form the plural of an abbreviation that ends with a period.

B.A.'s (or BAs) = Bachelors of Arts

M.A.'s (or MAs) = Masters of Arts

PhD.'s (or PhDs) = Doctors of Philosophy

P.A.'s (or PAs) = Physicians Assistants

- ⑤ Use an apostrophe to form the plural of an abbreviation that is not followed by a period. It is also acceptable to write the plural without the period.

How many CD's (or CDs) do you own?

How many different LSAT's (or LSATs) has Bertha taken?

153 working with apostrophes

Activity

On the line next to each number, form the possessive form of the person, place, or thing using an apostrophe.

- ① _____ the scarf that belongs to the woman
- ② _____ the scarf that belongs to Helen
- ③ _____ the scarves that belong to the women
- ④ _____ the bike that is owned by the boy
- ⑤ _____ the bike that is owned by Chris
- ⑥ _____ the bikes that are owned by the boys
- ⑦ _____ the room occupied by the baby
- ⑧ _____ the room occupied by the babies
- ⑨ _____ the opinions of everybody
- ⑩ _____ the ideas of my uncle
- ⑪ _____ the backpack belonging to someone
- ⑫ _____ the home of my brother-in-law
- ⑬ _____ the car owned by Jim and Nicole
- ⑭ _____ the cars separately owned by Nicole and Jim
- ⑮ _____ the magazine of this month

154 the colon

- ① Use a colon (:) to introduce a list or series of items.

You should have the following books and supplies with you on the first day of class: Roget's Thesaurus, two pencils, a dictionary, and two notebooks.

These are the eight parts of speech: noun, pronoun, adjective, verb, adverb, preposition, conjunction, and interjection.

Note: A colon should not follow directly after a verb or a preposition. The following two sentences include incorrect uses of the colon.

The two days of the weekend are: Saturday and Sunday.

We saw our dog run into: the woods, the house, and the neighbor's backyard.

- ② Use a colon after the salutation of a business letter.

Dear Sirs:

Dear Madam:

- ③ Use a colon between the hour and the minute of time.

It is now 4:22.

The train is due here at 5:08.

- ④ Use a colon between a title and a subtitle.

Mary Shelley wrote the novel Frankenstein: or, the Modern Prometheus.

Did William Shakespeare write Twelfth Night: Or What You Will?

Activity

Place colons where they are needed within these sentences.

- Please bring the following items with you watch, ring, cell phone, and pen.
- Dear Madam (as the salutation of a business letter)
- The following students have been selected for the varsity debate team Matthew, Hillary, and Sophia.
- My grandfather saw the movie Superman The Movie in 1979.
- Were you there at 440 that afternoon?

155 the semicolon

- ① Use a semicolon to join two independent clauses. In this case, a conjunction is unnecessary. The two independent clauses should be closely related.

Isaac is a champion discus thrower; he holds the state record. (This is an acceptable use of the semicolon.)

Isaac is a champion discus thrower; his dad is a baker. (This is an unacceptable use of the semicolon.)

The concert was not just good; it was fantastic! (This is acceptable.)

- ② Use a semicolon between a compound sentence's clauses that are joined by certain transitional words. Use a comma after these transitional words and phrases. See the sample sentences below.

accordingly	in other words
as a result	indeed
besides	instead
consequently	meanwhile
for example	moreover for instance	nevertheless furthermore	otherwise
however	that is in fact	therefore

The new tools are great; besides, they were perfect gifts for Dad.

Your dance score was one of the highest in this early competition; consequently, you will now move on to the next round.

- ③ Use a semicolon between items in a series—if the items in that series contain commas.

This movie's special people include Missy Swit, lead; Kate Lewis, director; Morty Mulis, producer; and Freida Ling, cinematographer.

- ④ To eliminate confusion, use a semicolon before the coordinating conjunction that joins two independent clauses.

At the beach we collected shells, wood, and seaweed; and then we barbequed, walked the shore, and made a campfire.

156 colons and semicolons in context

Activity

Insert any colon or semicolon where needed. The other marks of punctuation are correctly placed in these sentences.

- ① Harriet loved to go to the shore her brother really enjoyed going with her.
- ② The boater was speeding around the lake for two hours in fact, he was starting to annoy the people on the beach.
- ③ My great-grandfather's favorite movies include the following Vacation, starring Chevy Chase One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest, starring Jack Nicholson and Funny Girl, starring Barbra Streisand.
- ④ Our fitness instructor recommends these healthy foods carrots, peanuts, apples, grapes, and celery.
- ⑤ Let us plan to meet at 110 on the train platform.
- ⑥ (The secretary started her business letter with the following words)
Dear General McNamee
We would like to invite you . . .
- ⑦ The author told the audience members that she plans to entitle her next book Surfing A Sport Like No Others.
- ⑧ Our tour guide offered the group trips to these places Juneau, the capital of Alaska St. Louis, the Gateway to the West and San Francisco, the City by the Bay.
- ⑨ We need to reach our goal of $10,000 in two weeks therefore we will step up our phone campaign starting tomorrow.
- ⑩ The nurse spent much time with that one patient as a result, her time spent with the next few patients will be reduced.

157 quotation marks (part one)

When working with quotation marks (“ ”), follow these rules. This is the first of three pages about quotation marks.

- ① Use quotation marks before and directly after a speaker’s exact words.

The lifeguard told the swimmers, “Please move down between the green flags.”

Note: Use a comma to separate the speaker’s exact words from the sentence’s other parts.

“Please move down between the green flags,” the lifeguard told the swimmers.

Note: You do not have to use quotation marks around an indirect quotation.

The lifeguard told the beachgoers to move between the green flags if they wanted to go into the water.

Note: A direct quotation usually begins with a capital letter. If the quotation is not in its entirety, it often begins with a lowercase letter.

Mikki believes that “honesty is its own reward.”

- ② If a direct quotation that is a full sentence is broken up into two parts because the speaker is identified, the second part begins with a lowercase letter.

“Since the flowers are starting to bloom,” said Chris, “we should not step into the garden.”

Note: If the second part of a direct quotation is a complete sentence, start that part with a capital letter. Insert a period after the unquoted portion.

“This is beautiful!” responded Mrs. Alsager. “Keep it going!”

Note: If a person’s exact words are more than a single sentence and are not divided, use only a single set of quotation marks.

“Waves gently lapped the shore. Children played in the sand,” the man reported.

158 quotation marks (part two)

This is the second of three pages dealing with quotation marks. Know these rules and include them in your writing.

- ③ Use a question mark or an exclamation mark within the closing quotation mark if the question mark or the exclamation mark is part of the quotation.

“Is this the correct tool?” the assistant asked the machinist.

The soldier screamed to his comrade, “Move away now!”

Note: If a question mark or an exclamation mark is a part of the whole sentence (and not just a part of the direct quotation), place the mark outside the quotation marks.

Did Mr. Boland say, “You have only two choices left”? (The entire sentence, not the quotation, is a question.)

I was so ecstatic when Jenny said, “You are our choice for class rep!” (The entire sentence, not the quotation, is the exclamation.)

- ④ Use a comma, exclamation mark, or question mark to separate the direct quotation from the rest of the sentence. A period cannot do the same.

“Please help me lift this rug,” Mom requested Roberta.

“This is absolutely awesome!” the captain told her crew.

- ⑤ Place colons and semicolons outside the closing quotation mark.

There are two main characters in O. Henry’s story “The Gift of the Magi”: Jim and Della.

Karen remarked, “These two cars are full of supplies for the picnic”; only then did we realize that there was no room for any additional passengers.

159 quotation marks (part three)

This is the third of three pages dealing with quotation marks. Study these rules, and use them in your writing.

- ⑥ When you are writing dialogue, start a new paragraph each time the speaker changes.

“We need to remodel the upstairs bathroom,” Mom said to Dad.

He asked her, “How much do you think that this job will cost us? I think that I will probably be able to do most of the work.”

“Great!” Mom replied. “Let’s talk about the project again tomorrow.”

- ⑦ Use only the opening quotation marks at the beginning of each paragraph when you are quoting a passage of more than one paragraph. The only time to include the closing quotation marks is at the end of the concluding paragraph.

“The bridge was built after the immigrants began to come into the burgeoning city in large numbers. This bridge was not a luxury; it was a necessity. People demanded it, and the politicians responded quickly to their demands.

“Then the good times for construction workers began—and continued—for the next three decades. There was always work—and plenty of it. To be able to use a saw and hammer meant that you were able to feed your family.”

- ⑧ Use quotation marks to enclose the titles of the following: chapters, songs, articles, short poems, and short stories.

“Before Hitting the Water” (chapter) from Kayaking for Fitness

“America the Beautiful” (song)

“More Strain, More Injuries” (article)

“Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening” (short poem)

“Beware of the Dog” (short story)

160 italics, hyphens, and brackets

① Use italics (or an underline) for the titles of the following:

- books (Brain Games)
- comic strips (Pogo)
- full-length plays (The Crucible)
- long poems (The Aeneid)
- magazines (Sports Illustrated)
- movies (The Sound of Music)
- newspapers (New York Times)
- ships and planes (U.S.S. Constitution, The Spirit of St. Louis)
- television and radio programs (Law and Order, All Things Considered)
- works of art (Pietà)

② Use a hyphen

- to syllabicate words at the end of a line of typing or writing. Divide words of two or more syllables ONLY between syllables. Do not divide single-syllable words.
- to separate portions of certain compound nouns, such as father-in-law and editor-in-chief.
- between two words that comprise a single adjective (only when these words precede the noun that they are describing). Examples include moth-infected clothing and rosy-cheeked elf.

Note: If a word that comprises a single adjective ends with -ly, a hyphen is not necessary. (The rudely behaved spectator was spoken to by the usher.)

The reporter told the audience, "The New York Mets' first world championship [1969] was memorable for all New Yorkers."

William Shakespeare (known as the Bard of Avon [1564–1616]) wrote many comedies, histories, and tragedies.

161 parentheses, ellipsis marks, and dashes

Use the following rules for these three punctuation marks.

① Parentheses () are used to

- enclose numbers or letters in a series within a sentence

There are three different types of learners: (1) visual, (2) auditory, and (3) tactile-kinesthetic.

- enclose extra materials

Priscilla Smith (née Franklin) is a talented orator.

Marla's favorite U.S. president, John F. Kennedy (1961–1963), was our nation's thirty-fifth President.

- enclose explanatory materials

Her first year in office (2009) was a busy one indeed.

② Ellipsis marks (...) are used to

- indicate that material has been omitted from a quotation

"The best that has happened ... was all due to your efforts," Michaela proudly told her brother, Nico.

- indicate that a statement or series is not complete

The rigorous examination includes essays on various topics (trade rights, antidiscrimination laws, ...) that challenge all of the law students.

③ A dash (—) is used to

- indicate a sudden break in the sentence

That was a hard fact to believe—even for the most cynical among us.

- indicate an interruption in speech

"Well—um—I just thought that the plan would work," the embarrassed boy told his parents.

- highlight or explain a word or series of words in a sentence

These excellent singers—Mike, Joan, Terri, and Marcia—will continue to work here at the resort for as long as they want.

162 all sorts of punctuation problems

Activity

Insert the necessary punctuation where needed.

- ① Will you please hand me that wrench asked Jimmy Bevy
- ② She replied You can contribute any amount that you can afford We accept all donations
- ③ They will find Rex went on that this meal is very tasty

- ⑧ Did Ms Wright say Yvonne can do no wrong
- ⑨ Laverne screamed Youre going to knock over that expensive vase Betty
- ⑩ Can you take this heavy package to Tom Ted asked Tim You will need your car to haul it

163 All the punctuation is missing!

Activity

All of the punctuation marks in these ten sentences are missing. Insert whatever punctuation (apostrophe, comma, colon, semicolon, quotation marks, italics, hyphen, brackets, parentheses, ellipsis marks, and dash) is needed to make these sentences flow better. Each mark of punctuation is used at least once. Retain all of the original words.

172 grammar and Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea

Activity

Here is the opening passage from Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea, a novel by Jules Verne. Each sentence's number appears in parentheses before the sentence. Answer the questions on the lines provided for you.

(1) The year 1866 was marked by a bizarre development, an unexplained and downright inexplicable phenomenon that surely no one has forgotten. (2) Without getting into those rumors that upset civilians in the seaports and deranged the public mind even far inland, it must be said that professional seamen were especially alarmed. (3) Traders, ship owners, captains of vessels, skippers, and master mariners from Europe and America, naval officers from every country, and at their heels the various national governments on these two continents, were all extremely disturbed by the business.

- ① Name the two verb phrases in the first sentence. _____ and _____
- ② What part of speech is especially in sentence two? _____
- ③ Why are there commas in between the first few words of sentence three? _____
- ④ Name three adjectives in the first sentence. _____, _____, and _____
- ⑤ What word in the second sentence is acting as both an adjective and a pronoun? _____
- ⑥ Is the prepositional phrase, on these two continents, in the third sentence, an adjective or an adverb phrase? _____
- ⑦ The noun clause in the second sentence is _____ 173 grammar, mechanics, and Alice in Wonderland

Activity

Here are ten questions about grammar and mechanics in this one-sentence passage from Lewis Carroll's book, Alice in Wonderland. Answer the questions on the lines provided. The four sections of the text are numbered in parentheses after each section.

Alice was beginning to get very tired of sitting by her sister on the bank, and (1) of having nothing to do: once or twice she had peeped into the book her sister (2) was reading, but it had no pictures or conversations in it, "and what is the use (3) of a book," thought Alice, "without pictures or conversations?" (4)

- ① Name a proper noun in the first section of text. _____
- ② What is the conjunction in the first section of text? _____

- ⑧ Use, in the third section, is what part of speech? _____
- ⑨ Why is there a comma after book in the fourth section?

- ⑩ Why is the question mark inside the quotation marks in the last part of the fourth section of text? _____

174 phrases, clauses, and sentences found in "One Thousand Dollars"

Activity

Using this selection from O. Henry's short story, "One Thousand Dollars," answer each question. The passage has been broken up into Sections A, B, and C.

(Section A) "One thousand dollars," repeated Lawyer Tolman solemnly and severely, "and here is the money."

(Section B) Young Gillan gave a decidedly amused laugh as he fingered the thin package of new fifty-dollar notes.

(Section C) "It's such a confoundedly awkward amount," he explained, genially, to the lawyer. "If it had been ten thousand a fellow might wind up with a lot of fireworks and do himself credit. Even fifty dollars would have been less trouble."

- ① The word repeated in the first section is written in what tense?

- ② In Section A, solemnly and severely are both what part of speech?

- ③ Is the sentence in Section B, a simple, compound, or complex sentence? (Circle one)
- ④ What is the subordinating conjunction in Section B's sentence?

The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day

180 Ready-to-Use Lessons to Teach Grammar and Usage, Grades 5-12

The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day is a must-have resource that features 180 practical, ready-to-use grammar, usage, and mechanics lessons and a wealth of instructive and fun-filled activities—one for each day of the school year. The daily activities give students (grades 5-12) the confidence they need to become capable writers by acquiring, improving, and expanding their grammar skills.

Written by veteran educator and best-selling author Jack Umstatter, this handy book will help classroom teachers and homeschoolers familiarize their students with the type of grammar-related content found on standardized local, state, national, and college admissions tests. The book is filled with ready-to-use comprehensive and authoritative activities that can be used as sponge activities, extra homework, or regular daily lessons. In addition, all the reproducible lessons are designed to be non-intimidating for students, and the author has included helpful tips on how to best use each specific topic or lesson in the classroom.

The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day contains

- 26 lessons and activities that cover the eight parts of speech

- 114 lessons and activities that shed light on the parts of a sentence, prepositional phrases, verbal phrases, clauses, and sentences by construction and purpose; agreement; tense; regular and irregular verbs; voice; and the nominative, objective, and possessive cases
- 30 lessons and activities that focus on essential elements of effective writing, including punctuation, capitalization, and spelling
- 10 lessons and activities that encourage students to display their knowledge of the topics covered in the book

The book's enjoyable lessons and activities will help your students improve their grammatical skills and become self-assured and willing writers.

"Jack Umstatter's The Grammar Teacher's Activity-a-Day is a powerful grammar resource for classroom teachers. Loaded with clear, concise definitions, examples, and practice activities, this is a valuable tool for all teachers, not just those who teach writing."
